SECOND GRAYSON ATTEMPT FAILS

PLANE RETURNED TO FIELD AFTER FALSE
START ON SATURDAY

Inability To Cause Plane
To Rise Is Again
Blamed

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 22.—Shortly after taking off early today on an attempted non-stop flight to Copenhagen in her plane "The Dawn," Mrs. Frances Grayson returned to the starting point.

"We just could not make her rise," was Mrs. Grayson's explanation of her second false start across the ocean. Shortly after the plane containing Mrs. Grayson, Wilmer Stultz, her pilot, and Brice Goldsborough, navigator, had been lost to sight, it again appeared, flying low.

It headed straight for the beach here and when a little off shore, settled on the water and began circling about.

Stultz then let down his landing gear and brought "The Dawn" back into the hangar. Climbing out of the plane, Mrs. Grayson said:

"We were going down wind all the time and we just could not make her rise. I believe we had too much of a load; you see, we had 321 gallons of gasoline aboard. This is more than we've ever carried."

Mrs. Grayson added that they had reached a point about two miles beyond the Cape Elizabeth lightship when they noticed that "The Dawn" would not climb. They then decided not to take the risk of going further.

Most of the way out to the Cape Elizabeth lightship and back "The Dawn" was almost skimming the water. The wind was from the south southwest quarter, just the wind Mrs. Grayson had been waiting for to aid in lifting the heavy load of between eleven and twelve thousand pounds.

"The Dawn" was so close to the water in coming toward the beach that Pilot Stultz found he could not make a landing without digging the nose into the sand, so that he skillfully made a landing on the water. The cabin was sprayed by the waves.

Undaunted, Mrs. Grayson ordered another supply of gasoline, for part of the supply on "The Dawn" had been dumped by Navigator Goldsborough.

This was the second false start of "The Dawn." Last Monday the plane was "down by the nose" with gasoline in the forward tanks and had to return in less than a quarter of an hour after the take-off. The load was equalized, and then followed a long wait for a favorable west southwest wind.

Igor Sikorsky, builder of the plane, and other aviation experts here went into conference to devise some way of getting the plane into the air. One plan was to reduce the gasoline supply. This would permit only a flight to England. Mrs. Grayson said she would be satisfied if she could span the ocean, refuel, and proceed to Copenhagen. Another take off between 5 and 6 p. m. was under discussion.

Finally it was decided that unless conditions were absolutely perfect late today another take off would be deferred until 7 a. m. Sunday. Pilot Stultz balked at an evening take off, because he said it would mean two nights over the water. Every indication was "The Dawn" would not attempt to leave again until Sunday morning.

Stultz in safety bringing "The Dawn" back to the beach displayed unusual aviation skill. Stultz said:

"We traveled about twenty miles. At times we were only six inches above the water. At no time were we more than thirty feet up. We were running about one hundred and twenty-five miles an hour. Would not slow her up for fear of hitting the water nose on. We had to dump 200 gallons of gasoline to lighten her load. Several times we thought we were going to crash, but I finally got her back. When we take off again we will go back to our original load of 850 gallons of gasoline. We will probably start again Sunday morning, for what we want now is a little headwind off shore to give us a lift in sending the plane into the air."

BRITISH SAILORS FIRE ON CHINESE

HONG KONG, Oct. 22.—Further conflict between British naval forces and Chinese armed bands occurred today when the warship Curlew was object of a rifle and machine gun attack from the shore, forty-one miles above Wuhu. The Curlew retaliated by firing her whole battery on the attackers. Later two Chinese gunboats fired upon the attackers of the Curlew.

DODGE TO TESTIFY AGAINST REMUS

Carroll More Cheerful

EN ROUTE WITH EARL CARROLL, BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 22.

—Earl Carroll, speeding toward Broadway and a "come back" from prison life, today displayed for the first time since he emerged from the prison gates Thursday night a zest for life and work and a cheerfulness that had been lacking in his grave, shy demeanor.

He awakened at dawn with the habit of prison routine still upon him. He greeted the day in a suit of flaming purple pajamas, quite a contrast to the blue denim he had worn in Atlanta as convict 24909.

He talked in a strain that differed from his prison conversation, as if his philosophy is ripening with reflection.

"In prison," Carroll said, after a hearty breakfast, "there is work and companionship and men's interests. I found them all, but it strikes me that the true horror of prison life lies in the fact that there are no women in that world."

"I don't mean women from the viewpoint of sex but from the point of beauty and tenderness. I mean the color that women give to life and that is reflected in the stores and shops of our cities, gleaming with articles for women's joy and adornment."

To all intents and purposes, Carroll is still a prisoner under the unending surveillance of the government and must continue thus until March 28, when his term of imprisonment would have expired.

"I have no disposition to violate any of the rules," said Carroll, "and my personal habits would keep me safe from violating the terms of my parole in that respect, but the burden of the obligations that are imposed, the sense of watchfulness that is upon me, the feeling that I am still in custody, are disheartening circumstances."

"Frankly, my will to pick up my work and my ambition need a stimulation. Something may come soon, when I drift into my work, but just now I have no plans and no energy to work."

"For five months I have lived without planning, without thought of anything except the job at hand."

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., will testify against George L. Remus, former "King of the Bootleggers" when he is tried for the murder of his wife, Imogene Remus, at Cincinnati last month.

"The former ace of the department of justice will be a state's witness," announced Carl E. Basler, first assistant county prosecutor, today.

The decision to use Dodge as a witness came after a long conference between the alleged lover of Mrs. Remus and Basler, today.

"I will testify at any proceeding where I am a party," admitted Dodge. "I will be in Cincinnati next month for the trial and I have most certainly been made a party to his trial by his lies and his vicious attacks on my character."

There is nothing for me to fear. My relations with Mrs. Remus were legitimate, I will prove that," said Dodge.

"George Remus is a coward," as asserted the former agent.

"If he were not a coward, why didn't he murder me rather than kill that poor defenseless woman? I did not hide from him. He knew where I was all the time."

Attorney Charles Elston, counsel for the defense, appeared pleased rather than annoyed when he heard of the prosecution's newest plan. "No, nothing would please me more," commented Elston.

"With the information I received yesterday, and other evidence, I will develop, I will shoot his testimony full of holes. He cannot truthfully deny my client's charges against him. If Dodge testifies, Remus is a free man."

The deposition party will spend the remainder of the week in New York. It is expected Morris Sweetwood and Mamie Kessler, New York bootleg kings, will give depositions today. Kessler and Sweetwood served in Atlanta with Remus for violation of the prohibition act, and are expected to give information concerning the relationship of Dodge and Mrs. Remus.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The Democratic program for tax reduction will exceed $400,000,000, Rep. Collier, (D), of Mississippi, a member of the house ways and means committee which will initiate the tax revision bill, asserted here today.

"Every proposal made by a Republican leader thus far for tax reduction is less than the treasury can stand," said Collier. "The president has declared that a $350,000,000 tax cut is too much, but I believe that it should not be less than $400,000,000."

Reduction in corporation taxes and abolition of many "nuisance" taxes were predicted by Collier.

Although flood relief legislation must take preference over everything else, the financing of this program will not halt tax reduction, he asserted.

RUMORS THAT CAROL ABANDONED MADAME LUPESCU ARE FALSE

Prince Remains With Charmers At Chateau
Near Paris

By WILLIAM P. CARNEY
(Copyright, 1927, By International News Service.)

PARIS, Oct. 22.—While wild rumors from Berlin, Vienna and Bucharest circulated today, claiming that former Crown Prince Carol of Roumania, had deserted Magda Helene Lupescu, his beautiful red-haired companion, Carol and Magda were spending a quiet day at the former's newly purchased chateau 100 miles from this city.

The report that Carol was on his way back to Roumania was proved untrue when it was learned that the former crown prince and his charmer were at the chateau.

"It is all a lot of rot," exclaimed Carol when told of the rumors that have been in circulation in Berlin, Vienna and Bucharest for the past week. "This is not the first time that my earnest efforts to have privacy caused various rumors of my whereabouts to be spread abroad."

"I can only repeat what I told International News Service last winter when newspapers all over the world had me at Rapallo, that is, I was never away a single day from the villa I was occupying at that time at Neuilly, just outside of Paris."

"I shall never sneak into Roumania—my native land. If I go at all I will go openly and honestly like a real man who has nothing to conceal. I will never go quietly and under cover like one who is afraid."

The International News Service correspondent visited Carol's chateau by special invitation to deny the rumors that have been printed all over the world the past few days—rumors that had Carol and Magda on their way to Bucharest secretly. One of them had gone so far as to say that the peasants of Roumania had invited Carol to return to oust his baby son from the throne.

When he was shown newspaper clippings telling of his alleged break with his beautiful companion Carol (who was standing in the

LEAVE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE IN FRANCE

Dwight Davis Leading Candidate—Post Is Serious One

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France at the start of the world war, and who returned to Paris in 1921, has signified to President Coolidge his desire to be relieved of his post as soon as the administration can conveniently choose his successor it was learned here today.

Advancing years and ill health have been ascribed as the causes. Ambassador Herrick returned from France in mid-summer and since that time has undergone two operations. His recovery has been slow, and his general condition is such that he has yielded to the advice of friends and relatives that he should give up his post. He recently passed his 73rd birthday.

No announcement has been made of the ambassador's decision and it is probable that he will be relieved of his post as soon as the administration can conveniently choose his successor it was learned here today.

There is no dearth of candidates for the Paris embassy, which, next to London, is considered the prize post in the American diplomatic service. It is partly for this reason that Ambassador Herrick's contemplated retirement is being kept as quiet as possible. President Coolidge does not wish to be embarrassed by a general scramble for the post.

One of the leading candidates, however, is now a member of the cabinet—Dwight D. Davis, Secretary of War. Representations in Secretary Davis' behalf have already been made to the White House, although with what success has not been determined.

Davis is said to have long desired a diplomatic post. He is independently wealthy, and is considered "available."

Another possible candidate is George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania, who retired from the senate following his defeat in the Pennsylvania primary by the Mellon organization in Pennsylvania, also is considered "available."

The French post is considered a particularly difficult one at this time owing to the numerous important problems confronting the two governments. The question of the French war debt settlement, as yet unrattled by the French Parliament, is by itself a problem of monumental diplomatic proportions. There is also the tariff dispute which will require extended negotiation before yielding to settlement. There are collateral problems of sufficient numbers and importance to make the Paris post a lively one for the next few years.

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 22.—Hundreds of football fans enroute today to Ann Arbor to attend the Ohio Michigan game patted at a white cross three miles north of here to pay respect to the memory of the late Walter Essman, Ohio State freshman coach who was killed there in December 1925, in an auto accident.

Ribbons of scarlet and gray and wreaths of flowers bedeck the spot. A spray of pink carnations bears the card: "Remembrance for Wellston."

High school boys and Boy Scouts kept watch at the cross during the night and will continue today.

WRITES TO FRIENDS AND CUTS WRISTS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—Severely shocked when they received notes from him declaring, "While you are reading these lines the writer is lying dead at room 119, Doanbrooke Hotel," Meyerowitz was found in the hotel with his wrists and throat slashed, but the would-be-suicide was rushed to a hospital and is expected to recover.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—Joseph D. Brown, Columbus patrolman, was seriously injured, and two youths giving the names of Clyde Stone and Edward Graham, both of Columbus, were seriously hurt, when the patrolman's car collided with one occupied by the youths here early today.

Mrs. Frances Grayson, aviator who hopes to fly to Denmark, made her second false start Saturday morning. She turned her plane back when she said it refused to gain altitude, the same reason for which it was returned after its first false start.

FAILURE AT GENEVA WILL FORCE BIGGER NAVY SAYS WILLIS

Ohio Senator Says National Defense Com-ing Problem

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The United States must build the greatest air force in the world and materially strengthen the American navy as a result of the failure of the Geneva disarmament conference, Senator Willis (R) of Ohio, declared today in outlining a legislative program for the new congress.

Flood relief, farm relief and putting new teeth in the national defense, Willis said, were the outstanding legislative problems facing congress. Because of the expenditures necessitated by this program, he added, tax reduction legislation would have to be limited to a $250,000,000 slash.

"Since the Geneva conference failed," Willis said, "we must strengthen our navy. It is unfortunate but the United States cannot become a power for world peace unless we are properly armed. We must develop an aviation program of considerable proportions. It cannot be avoided any longer."

"America has the best fliers in the world. We have the Lindberghs, the Byrds and the Chambers. But we haven't the military material. Therefore we must develop the greatest aviation program in the world."

Willis declared tax relief would have to be held to $250,000,000 because the costs of farm relief, Mississippi flood relief and the national defense programs cannot be estimated now. He particularly stressed the need for large appropriations to strengthen levees, build reservoirs and erect world-wide along the Mississippi in order to free that valley from the danger of future floods.

U. S. OFFICIAL INDICTED BY JURY

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 22.—Frank G. Thomson, United States commissioner here, today was awaiting arraignment in federal court on a charge of conspiracy, following his indictment by a federal grand jury late Friday.

Thomson's bond of $2,000 was continued. He with his stenographer, Ruth Hollinger, and Jack Thomas were arrested several days ago when $300 is alleged to have been paid to Miss Hollinger by Charles Rafful who sought leniency in a liquor case.

Thomson declares the money was accepted as payment for stock Rafful wished to purchase.

FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION IS OVERSHADOWING TAX PROBLEM

President And Cabinet Consider Question—Insurgents Meeting To Find Solution Of Same Question

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Agricultural relief legislation today overshadowed even tax reduction as the major problem under consideration in administration as well as in congressional circles.

While the insurgent bloc on Capitol Hill studied various plans in the hope of drafting a new farm bill, President Coolidge and his cabinet advisers were reported to be giving the subject constant consideration. The outcome probably will be in the introduction of at least two new farm bills as soon as congress convenes.

The president was said to be giving more time to consideration of the farm problem than to any other subject at this time. His advisers are compiling data on which the administration may base a new bill. It was said the president feels the necessity of agriculture legislation and that he is now willing to go much further to provide relief than he was a year ago. He is still opposed to the equalization fee on constitutional grounds.

The insurgents after a series of minor conferences, will meet Monday morning in a group to discuss the farm problem and the outlook for legislative relief.

One plan, fathered by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, (R), of Iowa would eliminate the equalization fee but compel the government to stand the losses of a federal export corporation, intended to buy the surplus crop at a fixed price to sell them later abroad at the world market price. Eventually, the Brookhart plan would have the farmers pay the bill.

The insurgents, however, will not be willing to drop the equalization fee, which featured McNary-Haugen bill last year, unless the substitute plan is certain to dispose of crop surpluses. If Brookhart can convince them that his plan is practical, it may be supported.

"The biggest farm problem is to get rid of the surplus," said Senator Norris (R) Neb., insurgent leader. "I am not committed to any one plan but until a more effective plan is revealed, I will support the equalization fee."

Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, who opposed the equalization fee last year, meanwhile predicted the insurgents would reach an agreement not only on farm relief but on other legislative problems as well.

The administration meanwhile was reported to be ready to throw its forces against the equalization fee as it did last year. Then, the president's followers brought about the defeat of the McNary-Haugen bill. If this feature should be dropped from farm relief legislation, it was intimated, the administration might even reach an agreement with other groups of farm relief advocates.

Mr. R. Hayes Hamilton arrived home Thursday evening from Lenox, Mass., where he has been connected with the Hotel Aspinwall. He will remain at his home here a month or more before leaving for Hamilton, Bermuda, to spend the remainder of the winter. Mr. Hamilton is entertaining a company of friends at dinner at the Hotel Alexandria, West Alexandria, O., next Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Houk have moved from S. Monroe St., to 611 S. Detroit St.

Mrs. S. C. Wright, S. Detroit St., was a guest when Cedar-Cliff Chapter, D. A. R., met at the home of Mrs. Anell Wright, Cedarville, Saturday afternoon.

A called meeting of Lewis Relief Corps will be held Tuesday afternoon at Post Hall, at 1 o'clock, promptly. Business of placing will be transacted and every member is urged to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bishop, N. King St., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Alden, Columbus, will spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. John Collins at their home near Dayton.

Mrs. Winifred B. Mason and Miss Mildred Mason, S. Detroit St., will spend the week end with relatives in New Castle, Ind.

Farm Notes

TO PROTECT FRUIT TREES

The orchardist's labor does not end with the harvesting and marketing of the fruit crop. Right after apple harvest is the time to inspect the orchard and fit it for winter if the trees are to come through the winter unharmed, says J. K. Kimber, county farm agent.

Grass and weeds should be removed from around the base of young trees. This is done to protect the trees from mice and other rodents that are likely to find in the grass and weeds an ideal winter refuge and then feed on the bark of the young trees and their roots.

After the grass and rubbish are removed soil is slightly mounded about the tree trunk to prevent water from collecting and standing at its base. Many trees are killed by winter injury because a depression near the base of the tree permits water to settle there during later winter or early spring.

This work takes but little time and may be done when the orchardist is least busy. But as a matter of good insurance it should be done before winter.

A check discovered that at least 400 boxes of cigars on the shelves were rendered valueless by smoke and water. Each box contained fifty cigars. The stock of cigarettes and other tobacco was small.

"JIMMY" HALL

James Edward Hall, better known as "Jimmy" is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall, King and Second Sts. "Jimmy" is a year old and is an attractive youngster.

During convention week in Paris chauffeurs flew little American flags on their taxis in honor of the Legionnaires. No doubt there was a little method in their madness; French chauffeurs are polite, but they are clever too. An official organ of the Soviets frightened a few of them who tucked them into their portfolios and only exhibited the American colors at the right moment, when searching for change. Yes, it usually worked with the generous Americans and the tips were royal ones.

A new cabaret has opened up in Paris. It is the "College Inn," in the rue Vavin, just opposite the Nordic favorite, the Vikings, and is presided over by the American Jed Kiley, who once had the same kind of a place in Montmartre.

There is good jazz, excellent Charlestoning and everything is as gay as it should be.

For several days now the old castle of the Counts of Saint Pol has been the scene of a search which is arousing the curiosity of everyone living about there. Search is being made for the golden statue of Saint Pol, said to be hidden there. A spring-finder with her wand is doing it and while exploring the cellar of the ancient castle she discovered ten underground passages radiating in various directions under the town. These passages are anterior to destruction of the town in 1537 by Charles V. and will be explored shortly.

Parisians will soon have the opportunity to see classical Chinese dramas played in Chinese in the real Chinese manner. After a lapse of six years, Mei Lanfang, supposed to be China's greatest actor, will make a tour of the largest cities in the world. There will be forty actors in his own company and his own orchestra of musicians, all of whom are well-known throughout China.

SPEDER FORFEITS BOND
J. P. Robinson, Springfield, arrested Friday by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, on a charge of speeding, forfeited $5 appearance bond. Shagin claimed the Springfield man was driving at a rate of forty miles an hour on N. Detroit St. Robinson, police, said admitted he was driving fast but thought he was outside the city limits.

CHILD KILLED
CANTON, Oct. 22—Jack Paone, 4, was killed when struck by an automobile. R. J. Deckman, driver of the car, was held by police though Coroner McQuate has announced that in his opinion the accident was unavoidable. Henry S. Wackerly, 61, died of injuries received when he was hit by a truck.

SAFETY FIRST
LONDON, England.—If some automobile is run into and smashed by a pedestrian, the driver of the car will at least not be able to say that he had no warning. A resident of Southampton was observed strolling along with a small but noisy motor horn firmly attached to his walking stick. When crossing a street he sounded loud blasts as a warning to motorists of danger.

COACH RECONSIDERS
MASSILLON, Oct. 22—John Atkinson, high school football coach, who tendered his resignation several days ago because of adverse criticism directed at his team, has reconsidered and will continue for the rest of the season. Members of the football squad declared they would not play in any more games this year if the coach were permitted to resign.

PERFUME SPRAY FOR THEATERS IN PARIS IS LATEST WRINKLE

PARIS, Oct. 22.—French managers are now spraying their theaters with perfume, a sweet scent which effectively offsets every hygienic deodorant imposed by the health inspector. The liquid is sent whirling through the atmosphere by means of a giant golden pump which, by the way, was designed by one of Paris' smartest couturiers. It invades every corner of the house, the air clears instantly and the smoke and disagreeable odors of stale tobacco give way to floral odors. The washed air is thoroughly antiseptic due to the fact that all flower essences possess disinfectant properties.

TWENTY THOUSAND CIGARS BURNED IN STOREROOM BLAZE

Twenty thousand cigars and 1,500 cigarettes are estimated to have been damaged by fire, water and smoke in a blaze of undetermined origin, which swept the interior of a store room in the rear of the Harness cigar store, 31 E. Main St., at 3:20 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The approximate loss is conservatively placed at $1,500, partially covered by insurance, by Orie A. Harness, proprietor of the store.

Fire Chief William Hanifan has the fire under investigation. It is considered probable the blaze was caused by either a carelessly-tossed cigarette or by defective electric wiring.

Firemen played water on the flames, used chemicals extensively and managed to confine the blaze in the rear warehouse where the entire stock is kept. The fire was brought under control soon and extinguished entirely in about one hour. A small hole was burned in the roof.

A check discovered that at least 400 boxes of cigars on the shelves were rendered valueless by smoke and water. Each box contained fifty cigars. The stock of cigarettes and other tobacco was small.

No damage resulted to the interior of the store proper.

BEACHAN INQUEST SET FOR TUESDAY

Formal inquest into circumstances surrounding the death of Ephraim Beachan, 49, colored, Birmingham, Ala., who was fatally shot by Fred O. Lieurance, Pennsylvania Railroad detective, last Monday night, will be held Tuesday morning, October 25 at 9 o'clock in the office of Miss Elsie Canby, court stenographer, in the Court House.

This announcement was made Saturday by Coroner Frank M. Chambliss, who has definitely decided upon an investigation. As many as eight witnesses may be subpoenaed for the inquiry, Coroner Chambliss said.

GRANGE WILL MEET IN YELLOW SPRINGS

"Shall the Farm Family Take a Vacation?" will be discussed when Greene County Pomona Grange meets with Yellow Springs Grange, Wednesday, October 25.

The meeting will open at 10:30 o'clock prompt. Election of officers will be held in the forenoon. The afternoon program will include playlets and other features.

NEW GERMANY PIKE BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE FRIDAY NIGHT

Fire, which destroyed a small barn on a farm owned by A. H. Cosler, Dayton Pike, located on the New Germany Pike, five and one-half miles northwest of Xenia, late Friday night, is suspected of being of incendiary origin.

An estimate of the damage could not be obtained, but the loss is believed to be partially covered by insurance.

The building and the contents, including a Ford touring car, owned by Abraham Free, tenant on the farm, and a pile of straw and furniture, were consumed in the blaze. No animals or grain are kept in the barn.

Mr. Free was asleep when awakened by the light created by the flames, shining in the window of his bedroom, about 11:15 o'clock.

Because of lack of fire-fighting apparatus, the blaze could not be adequately fought and finally burned itself out.

Neighbors who hurried to the scene, assisted in throwing water on the farm house, situated near the burning barn, and prevented the residence from catching on fire, although the paint was blistered by the intense heat.

The barn was believed to have been used for storage purposes.

No explanation of the origin of the blaze could be offered but Free is quoted as saying that indications pointed to the work of a "fire bug."

SEEING THINGS IN BRIGHT COLORS

Where you find a bright and growing business, or an advancing community, you always find some enthusiastic people. They are sanguine, hopeful and confident. They speak in warm terms of their home community. They see its fine achievements and its admirable people. They praise its advantages and utter no words of detraction.

They are confident and hopeful about prospects in their own business. They see everything in bright colors. While that spirit can be overdone and may be exemplified with lack of judgment, it is one that promotes support and cooperation. People buy goods of a salesman of that type. They like to move into a town that is full of that kind of folk. Things go ahead faster in that kind of a town.

QUEER "PRINCIPLE"

In Cincinnati, one of the most notorious crooks of this generation is caught murdering his wife. This man is an ex-convict, bootlegger, briber, grafter and corrupter of government. And when he shoots his own wife down in a public place, he says to the reporters:

"I am a man of principle. I have never smoked, not even a cigar. I never drank intoxicants. I never swear."

Well, it would be idle to heap abuse upon George Remus. His day of mortal reckoning is upon him, and he will soon find himself without the friends that his millions of ill-gotten dollars once bought for him. His lot is sad enough.

But here may be observed an interesting human characteristic. It is difficult to find a man who does not think pretty well of himself. The most depraved criminals talk themselves completely out of breath, reciting their own virtues.

As a general thing, men are better at this than women. Sometimes a woman, in prison, in disgrace, or in a corner, will remain altogether silent, either because she is too badly scared to talk, because she is crying too hard to permit of speech, or because she retains enough womanly dignity to realize that there is nothing to be said.

But you seldom see a man who could not find plenty of words with which to make you understand that it wasn't his fault and that he is really quite a remarkable fellow whose good points have been overlooked.

Doesn't it seem rather remarkable that a man who has just committed murder can boast, self-righteously, that he does not use profane language or liquor or tobacco?

But that, again, is all too human. The great sins are the sins that we are not guilty of. The bank-robber will boast that he does not cheat at cards. The pickpocket will tell you how noble he is because he doesn't beat his wife. And Remus, with a woman's blood upon his hands, tells the world that he is a man of principle, for he neither drinks, smokes nor swears!

Although it is unfortunate for young people to get contagious diseases, it seems that little can be done to save them from falling in love.

An explosion of the sun is said to be possible, but many will say that moonshine is more likely to blow up.

The Way of the World

RAINBOWS FOR MEN

Bristol red, sunshine yellow, Black Hills and some other colors are announced as new shades for men's suits. Why not? Why must man somberly clothe himself in drab and let woman get away with all the beauty in the world in her raiment? We are too much the creatures of habit—habit without a real purpose behind it. It might add to the harmless gaiety of our lives if we had the courage to wear brighter colors.

CROPS

More good news from the figure makers. Crops for 1927 are reported better than for 1926. Corn is fair in the west and poor in the east. Wheat is good in part of the country and fair elsewhere. If somebody between the farmer and the city dinner table doesn't make too much money, we may have lower food prices. As it is, food prices are lower than they were a few years ago. In the midst of much to criticize let's take time to be grateful for a thing now and then.

SAPPODILS

Sappodil is a new word and a good one. It is a combination of sap and daffodil. A sap is a fool or nearly a fool. A sap who is pleasant and agreeable and an easy mark at the same time is a sappodil. He is gentle, like a daffodil, but he doesn't amount to much. To be a "good fellow" unless it helps somebody who needs help or achieves a distinctly worthwhile result is not worth the effort. Too many "good fellows" are what they are simply because they haven't the courage to be anything better.

SPEEDING UP

If you don't believe the world is changing, note the proposed law in Cook county, Illinois, where Chicago is located. Commissioners are considering a resolution to set a minimum of 20 miles an hour for motor cars on main highways. You have to move faster whether you want to or not. The old world lingers less—and is less happy as loitering goes out of fashion.

JUDGE IS RIGHT

A Wisconsin judge refused a foreigner his citizenship papers because the man had been convicted of driving an auto when drunk. He will have to wait five years more for his next naturalization process. This is a wise judge. A man who will equip himself for murder by driving an auto when he is drunk ought to wait in jail until citizenship papers are granted. And then he ought not to get them.

By
Burt Rascoe

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. — The most pitiful exiles this week in our city were two mallard ducks caught in the pent house on the roof of the Hotel Belvedere in Forty-eighth street. The drake had been wounded in the leg, and his mate tried jealously to guard him when two workmen mending a leak in the coping, captured them. The manager of the Belvedere humanely put the devoted duck couple up for the week, until the male's wing was strong enough to bear him up again. The bell boy who brought the two birds water and biscuits found their presence in the hostelry far more exciting than ever that of the occasional stage people who patronize the place.

There's a rosy checked Brooklyn girl with Irish eyes who runs the tower building elevator in the Woolworth building. Her beauty secret, she tells anyone who cares to know, is living in high altitudes. Swiss mountain climbers and trappers to the Grand Canyon have nothing on her. Of course, at night she has to leave her eyrie and traipse home by way of the underground railway to Brooklyn, but she gulps down so much fresh ozone all day long that her school girl complexion is the envy of all the girls in Canarsie, Prospect Heights and Greenpoint.

Panorama of New York. — Water main burst in Fifth avenue above Ninety-sixth street provides playtime puddles for all the children in the neighborhood. — Hispano Suizas and Fords plough bravely through it, splashing rich and poor alike. — Three mere males sit disconsolately on the bottom step of the flight leading up to the Bronx Maternity Hospital, obviously awaiting the good news. — An elderly gentleman in correct English clothes unpacks his intimate garments in the center room of Pennsylvania Station, oblivious of the smiles of the populace. — Tired immigrants sprawl on their heaps of luggage in a balcony overlooking the main part of Grand Central, listening dazedly to the admonitions of the Travelers' Aid ladies who mean so well but scare them to death. — Dozens of dashing undergraduates in equally dashing new outfits bustle by, bound for New Haven and Cambridge. — I try at three different shops to buy "The Canary Murder Case" for a friend who's starting on a cross continent journey, and get the "sold out" sign at each shop. At the last place the girl clerk suggests "Mother India" as a likely substitute.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly
Habit as Marriage Aid

A young man told me a number of interesting facts about his approaching marriage. For some time he has been "keeping company"—as we used to say in the Middle West—with an attractive young woman. He went to see her every Sunday night, and one night in between he usually took her to a movie or a dance. On other nights he preferred to stay home and read. He had never felt more than a pure academic interest in marriage. It did not appeal to him as a thing for personal application.

His theory was that he could maintain romance at a higher pitch by confining his sentimental moods to Sunday evenings and one night between—say, Wednesday or Thursday. He would have been content to go along indefinitely on that basis.

But other young men found the same young woman excellent company and volunteered to drop in to see her or escort her to social gatherings.

One or two of these young men talked engagingly about the fascinating subject of marriage. The consequence was that my friend, the Sunday-night reader, had to make a choice between marrying the estimable and charming young woman himself, or of losing her company for good and all.

He did not decide instantly, but weighed the relative advantages of avoiding marriage, or being lonely one or two evenings a week, and of taking a fresh start elsewhere.

I have grown so accustomed to spending my Sunday evenings with her," he said, "that I shouldn't know what to do with myself without a sweetheart. It might require a year to find another girl equally congenial."

He decided to marry her rather than lose her entirely and have to look about for a new girl. Yet he was frank to say that he didn't much like the idea of being married.

Ever since he told me this I have been wondering how many marriages take place because a man or a woman who doesn't want to be married shirks the annoyance of hunting up a new companion as insurance against occasional lonely evenings.

HE SHOULD KNOW

A boastful American had been admitted to heaven and was talking "splurgingly" about Niagara Falls. Someone near him laughed aloud. "Maybe," said the talkative one from the U. S., "you don't think 8,000,000 cubic feet of water pass over them every second. Maybe you don't think that is a lot of water? Might I ask your name, sir?" The one who had laughed aloud said softly: "Certainly. It's NOAH!"

HENRY'S NEW MODEL ISN'T THE ONLY ONE WE'RE WAITING FOR

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

BROODING OVER PAST NO HELP

A girl, caught in the web of circumstances, strayed from the narrow path. Heartbroken she asks whether she still has the right to expect happiness in life. Will the one man, whom she loves some day to meet, forgive? The letter below tells a pathetic little story:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have a good home with my foster mother. I would like to get acquainted with a man that will do the right thing by me and I sure will do everything in my power to make a good home for him. My foster parents did not tell me anything about the ways of the world, and I fell into a misfortune, but these dear good people did not turn me out and have seen me through it and no one knows about it. I have suffered and paid for the wrong I did when I was a kid and would like to know if you think there is some good, understanding man in this wide world who would forgive me? It seems that men's deeds can all be forgotten and forgiven and they go on just the same and believe they are all right, but a woman cannot. Oh, please, Mrs. Lee, tell me what to do and which way to turn.

"BROKEN HEARTED AND LONELY."

Why brood or think about what has occurred in the past? Try to use your misfortune as a foundation for a more sympathetic and broader understanding of life. It will then never stand in the way of your happiness when some day you will meet the right man. In the meantime, however, grasp at the happiness that is within your reach by cultivating friends and interests. After all, you have much to be thankful for, to have the love and protection of such splendid people as your foster parents.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 20. I have loved a boy for a year or more, but now I am not exactly sick of him yet sometimes I feel as if I love him again, and then I dislike him every much. What shall I do? Would you love him as you did at first or would you let it go as is going? Please give me the best advice and I will follow it.

PUZZLED."

You must be honest with yourself and the boy, Puzzled. Do not let vanity prompt you to lead the boy on, letting him believe that you love him when you do not. It is not fair. Think your problem over carefully and decide for yourself.

A boy comes forth with advice to "Tiny Tot," whose letter appeared a few days ago. She was wondering whether she should refuse petting and drop all good times or keep these and allow petting. He writes:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I hope you will print this letter so 'Tiny Tot' can see it.

"Listen, 'Tiny Tot,' don't allow yourself to go with the kissing and petting kind, for if you do it will be hard for you to ever find any true blue boys that you can rely on. I am glad to say that there are a good many boys that do not believe in that. I think I have a right to know, for I am a boy 26 years old and have been about a good deal. For myself, I have never been with a girl that would allow kissing and petting. Why? Because I did not want to be around them. There are plenty of boys just like myself."

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

A High Ride to Safety

Wish! swish! A dark shape flitted from out of the nowhere and hovered over Mother Possum's head.

"Beware!" squeaked a shrill voice, and the dark shape melted into the shadows, only to reappear in a moment, and this time to hang in midair over Peter.

"Beware! Beware!" it cried, again and again, until the boy became more curious than frightened.

"Beware of what?" cried Peter. "Are you speaking to me, sir, or to the Possums, or to all of us? And of what are we to be afraid? How shall we know what to do if we don't know what the trouble is? You are fluttering your wings so fast that I can't be sure whether you are a bird or not. Are you?"

"No," squeaked the flying voice. "I am a Bat, and it is evident that you are a creature who walks in the daylight or you would have known it at once. But this is no time to talk about myself. I come as a friend of the Possum and I bear them a warning."

Bat paid no further attention to Peter but headed for the Paw-Paw tree, squeaking as he flew.

"The hunt is on, Mrs. Possum. Two-Leg hunters are aboard and Wood-Woof and his brothers are on your trail. Two-Legs carry a bang-stick. I saw it on his shoulder, glistering in the moonlight. There is not a moment to lose. Get out of the moonlight, Possums. Run for your lives if you can."

you would save them. Hark! Wood-Woof has caught your scent. He will lead his master straight here."

"Wooooo!"

Afar in the fields that bordered the Great Wood, Wood-Woof was baying the glad news that his nose

MENU HINT

Potato soup is a satisfactory dish with which to start a meal, either luncheon, dinner or supper. There are a number of ways of making potato soup. Sometimes the potatoes are cooked and strained, sometimes they are cut in small pieces and the pieces left whole. Milk, seasoned with butter, almost always forms the "stock" of potato soup.

Potato Soup Date Salad
Whole Wheat Bread—Butter
Delicious Pudding Cream Sauce
Tea Milk

Diet Salad—Dice apples, dates, marshmallows and nuts, about equal parts, and mix with any good salad dressing, chill and serve on lettuce.

Delicious Pudding—One egg, two tablespoons sugar, two teaspoons butter, one and one-half cups flour sifted twice, one-half cup light colored molasses, one-half cup hot water with butter, add flour sifted with soda. Mix well. Pour in the first mixture. Grease the pan that fits into your steamer. Steam one hour. Serve with cream sauce as follows:

Cream Sauce—Two egg yolks, one cup powdered sugar, one-half pint thick cream, flavoring. Beat yolks of eggs until light yellow, then beat in the powdered sugar. Beat cream until stiff, combine mixtures and flavor.

Tartare is a French word meaning sharp. Therefore a tartare sauce is a sharp sauce.

Suggestions

Brighten With Water Color One housewife declares she wouldn't be without a few cakes of good quality water color paint. She uses them to touch up broken wallpaper, etc., and tells in the following how she renovated a paper lamp shade. She says: "I had an elaborate yellow lamp shade with black butterflies on it, which I thought I must give up; it was so faded and dusty. But I put a cake of sepia in a little water and with a brush splashed all the shabby parts of the shade. When it was dry I went over it here and there with rose madder. The colors ran and blended with each other and with the yellow, in a soft effect like autumn leaves, so that it is prettier than ever."

Baked Custard (Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Four cups scalded milk, four to six eggs, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, few grains of nutmeg. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar and salt and pour scalded milk on slowly. Put in butter mold, sprinkle with nutmeg and bake slowly until firm. Run a silver knife through custard and if it comes out clean the custard is done.

told him to his master, the hunter. At the sound of the dog's voice things began to happen under the Paw-Paw tree. Mother Possum leaped to the ground and gave several sharp yelps. Then Peter saw a sight he never forgot. Every little Possum hurried to mother's side and jumped upon her back. Mother Possum arched her tail forward and all the little Possums curled up their tails over mother's until they were hanging from it like so many little plums. Before Peter could so much as say good-bye, off Mother Possum trotted, her children riding in safety high on their queer coach.

As for the flowers! I remember a poet by the name of Gray once said: "Full many a flower is born to blush unseen."

And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

I took heart again as I thought "at perhaps, after all, those flowers might have been just as happy and bloom just as luxuriously in the pure air of heaven and caressed by the kisses of the sun, as they would be if they sensed that their fragrance would be mingled with the scent of crime. (Any one who visits a prison or jail knows that there is a distinct odor to crime.)

No, I really could not get up any sympathy for those cats and flowers.

On the contrary, if my eyes were wet it was when I thought of the blossoms in the city cemetery that are giving up their drying sweetness on a new-made grave, a grave which holds the form of a young man, whose black and sunken, discolored eyes will never open again.

By the way, there are usually six kittens in a litter. I wonder if this litter had the usual number? If so, I am anxious to know what became of the other four. Were they chloroformed or drowned, or were they otherwise disposed of?

Memo: When you weep with sympathy, be sure that you are not shedding tears for the wrong person.

A FERVENT HOPE

A young minister, noted for his jollity, was dining at a farmhouse one Sunday, when he received a plate heaped with roast chicken remarked facetiously.

"Well, here's where a chicken enters the ministry."

"Hope it does better there than it did in the lay work," rejoiced the bright boy of the family.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. — More cruisers—of the 10,000-ton class—real cruisers, not blue-prints—will be fought for tooth and nail, beginning about as soon as congress meets next December, and probably lasting all winter, unless the administration comes to somewhere near the big navy group's terms sooner than that.

Chairman Thomas S. Butler of the house of representatives committee on naval affairs, who is expected to launch the campaign, is in and out of Washington every few days now, from his home near Philadelphia, getting his committee's plans in shape. Other members of the committee—notably Representative Britten of Illinois, one of congress' leading big navy men—will be here considerably in advance of the session's opening, to lend a hand.

Movement Has Strength That Butler and his chief lieutenant among the committee members, Britten, will have strong backing, may be judged from fact that lawmakers like Speaker Longworth and Representative Tilson, majority floor manager in the lower house of the national legislature, are prominently identified with the big navy movement. A still cruiser fight was put up in congress last winter, as regular Republicans as Longworth, Tilson, Butler, Britten and others going so far as to vote against the policy of President Coolidge, who at that time was for a much restricted program, in the hope, which he still cherished then, that England would agree to a more radical naval armament limitation plan than the one adopted at the Washington conference of 1921-2.

Since then, however, the question was put to the test, at the Geneva meeting during the past summer, between American, British and Japanese representatives, resulting in the refusal of the British to consider any conditions which this country's delegates could see their way clear to accept, so that it is believed the president may be willing now to come to the big navy party's terms.

English Cruisers Superior The opening of congress will find American and English not far from an equality in the matter of battleships, the advantage is somewhat in England's favor—but the British, with 13 10,000-ton cruisers either in commission or nearing completion, and the United States with not one cruiser of more than 7,500 tons. The United States has, indeed, six cruisers of 10,000 tons "authorized" by act of congress and contracts for them have been let—nominally. That is, they are in the blueprint stage, and will never get farther than that until money is appropriated to build them. Enough actually has been appropriated to make a bare start on two more.

In other words, our eight 10,000-ton cruisers are blueprints or little better, and it is to complete them that next winter's fight will be waged.

This being accomplished, we shall have eight cruisers of 10,000 tons and 10, available now, of 7,500 tons each, or 18 all told. In addition to this, we have a few more or less formidable proportions, none of them less than 20 years old—virtually obsolete for serious warfare.

Great Britain, on the other hand, has, besides her 10,000-ton fleet, 13 vessels strong, 44 other cruisers of from 3,500 tons upward, many of them of not much less than 10,000 tons—four, for example, of 5,750.

British Naval Program The British naval program calls also for one new 10,000-ton cruiser and two of 8,000 tons each, every year.

In discussing questions of cruiser strength, navy men never pass over the possibilities of England's merchant fleet, which, properly armed, would serve as commerce destroyers as efficiently as war vessels could do. Shipping records show that the British could put in to commission 435 sail of sufficient speed, of from 14 to 24 knot speed.

an orange stick under the nails for scrapes away the skin that lines the under side of the nail and leaves the nail rough so that dirt is much more easily acquired and harder to get out. Never cut your cuticle. Simple work it down with your finger or the back of an orange stick. Cutting the cuticle is too likely to cause hangnails.

Now we come to the polish. Ordinarily, the best groomer woman wears her nails a pale rose. However, there is a type of exotic woman who can wear a geranium nail polish to match the shade of her lipstick. This is especially attractive in the evening, but is out of place in an office. In France, women recently adopted the style of coloring the nails to match the costumes. I have seen green nails that were a very charming finishing touch to a green costume. However, I do not believe that style has gained much vogue in this country.

Fundamentally, the friction polish is still considered the best. However, liquid polish is so much more easily applied and really does provide a protection for the nails so I feel that its popularity will steadily increase rather than wane. The ideal arrangement is to give yourself a good friction polish and then a coating of liquid polish over it to keep the shine and protect your nails.

Central Gridders Crush Urbana High Team 32 to 18

XENIA PASSES AND PLUNGES ITS WAY TO IMPRESSIVE VICTORY

Coach Kolb's Pets Outplay Urbana Most Of Game But Weaken In Final Periods—Team Shows Strongest Attack Of Year

By PHIL FRAME

EMPLOYING the aerial game to best advantage and exhibiting a varied attack that was hard to solve at all times, Central High School gridgers stretched out an unbroken winning record over Urbana High School for the delectation of school alumni, winning by the generous margin of 32 to 18 Friday afternoon on a dusty Urbana gridiron.

A great improvement in the forward passing game, a reliance on trick formations that were executed with the desired deception, the execution of ordinary plays with precision and unity, better tackling and interference, were things exceptionally noticeable about Xenia's play, giving ample evidence of a generally improved eleven.

As the game was played for two periods, it looked as if Xenia would win more handily than proved to be the case. Twenty-six points had been rolled up by the Blue and White in the first half while the Central goal line remained uncrossed.

With the tide of battle going so obviously against it, Urbana staged a remarkable comeback in the second half that brought three touchdowns and forced an exhausted Xenia eleven to the limit to protect its big early margin.

Urbana in the first half had been unequal to the task of coping with the powerful line and aerial attack of Kolb's pupils and was equally as helpless to gain ground consistently. The passing and running attack of Xenia for the first two periods was too much for Urbana to stop.

After an exchange of punts in the first period, Xenia put across its first touchdown after ten minutes of play. Yard by yard Central backs carried the ball from their own forty-yard line. Adair snugged a ten-yard pass from Doak for a yard gain. Buell slipped off tackle for four and then seven yards. A five-yard penalty and three line plunges by Captain Morton made ten yards, and a pass, Gibney to Morton, picked up eleven more. Then Buell twisted his way around end for an eighteen-yard run for the first score. Gibney kicked for the extra point.

Xenia kicked off and at this juncture, Urbana fumbled on its twenty-nine yard line and McPherson recovered for Xenia. An eleven-yard run by Doak placed the ball on the eighteen-yard line as the period ended. Buell skirted right end for eleven and after Gibney added three more, Captain Morton plunged across to the end zone for a second touchdown. Gibney's pass was knocked by an Urbana man into the hands of Scott for the extra point.

Urbana, after the kickoff, started a march for a score, aided by a twenty-five yard pass from Swisher to Hendrickson but Xenia held on its twenty-yard line and Swisher's drop kick was short. The ball was put in play on the twenty and on the first formation, Adair faked a play at end and darted through the line for a forty-yard run up the right side of the field. He was pulled to earth on Urbana's forty. Gibney heaved a pass to Doak for ten yards. Scott intercepted a Xenia pass and ran fifteen to his own forty-seven and Doak, Xenia end, duplicated the trick on the next play, running half the length of the field for a touchdown. He had a clear field for the jump. Gibney's place kick was blocked.

Central's fourth touchdown was not long in forthcoming. A fifty-yard run by Doak to the Urbana thirty after receiving a pass from Adair, paved the way. Adair then inserted his second long run of the game, turning right end for twenty-seven yards before he was tackled on the three-yard line. Morton shot off tackle on the next play for another score. Gibney was smothered in attempting to pass for the extra point. The half ended shortly afterward.

Refusing to accept defeat, Urbana came back in the second half with a rekindled spirit and played the Blue and White to a standstill. The luster of the victory is somewhat dimmed by the second half showing Xenia only took three sub-stitutes to Urbana as the reserves were playing a game in Dayton and this may account for the fact Urbana was carrying the game to Xenia at the finish.

In any event there was much to be said of the losing team as well as the winners. As the final half opened, Urbana began a concerted drive down the field. Wilson took the ball in midfield, fumbled a pass from center on the fourth down and then recovering, ran twenty yards to Xenia's thirty. Swisher's drop kick was short from twenty a little later, Morton kicked and Scott returned the punt forty-five yards, being finally tackled from the rear by Morton, the safety man, on the twenty. Wilson hit the line for five and Wilson ran around end for a touchdown that threw consternation into the Xenia camp. Swisher failed to add the extra point.

Xenia came back fighting. Morton received the kickoff and pulled a neat bit of deception by transferring the ball to Gibney, who ran unopposed up the sidelines for sixty yards to the Urbana twenty before he was upset. Swisher averted the danger temporarily by intercepting a pass and Wilson kicked to his own forty. A ten-yard pass to Gibney and a twelve-yard heave to Doak, mixed in with Doak's nine-yard run around end, carried the ball to the nine-yard line. On the second play, Gibney lunged over for a touchdown. His goal kick was blocked.

Three long runs by Murphy, Swisher and Wilson carried the ball to inside Xenia's five-yard mark. Once, twice, three times Urbana backs were sent against the sturdy Xenia forward wall but the line was equal to the emergency and held for downs on its

DAYTON KISER HIGH WINS VICTORY OVER CENTRAL RESERVES

Second Team Plays Well But Dayton Eleven Too Strong

Kiser Junior High "Panthers" proved too much for Central High School's reserve football eleven and made Xenia their third straight victim by the decisive margin of 26 to 0 Friday afternoon at Tri-angle Park in Dayton.

Kiser registered two touchdowns in the first period, one in the second and another in the fourth, due mainly to a slashing line offensive and runs around the ends.

Xenia High's substitute eleven lacked experience but nevertheless put up a good battle against the Dayton youngsters.

Kiser registered eight first downs and the latter one, Captain squadd made the trip in charge of Assistant Coach Glen Patterson. Xenia made two straight first downs at the very start of the contest.

Hite and Shroyer were the outstanding backfield stars for Kiser, the former making three touchdowns and the latter one, Captain Shroyer, a freshman, adept at line plunging, made the first score. Hite was on the receiving end of forward passes and was a brilliant open field runner.

Bell played a great game in the backfield for Xenia while Scurry smashed the line hard and often for consistent gains. Rich, who captained the team, played a fine defensive game and continually broke through to smash plays in their infancy. His end of the line was seldom turned by the home eleven. Funeral services for Ephraim Beachan, 40, colored, Birmingham, Ala., who was fatally shot by Fred O. Leurance, Pennsylvania Railroad detective in the East End, will be held Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Third Baptist Church. Interment will be made in Cherry Grove Cemetery.

Arrangements for the services were made by the United Brethren of Friendship, a new organization, with branches in various parts of the country, of which Beachan was known to be a member.

Undertakers Johnson and Watkins, who had charge of the body, delayed services as long as possible in an attempt to locate surviving relatives. A telegram delivered to Beachan's mother-in-law in the South, was not answered. Relatives of Beachan, who recently moved from Birmingham to Lynchburg, Va., also failed to answer telegrams sent to that point.

RUMORS THAT CAROL ABANDONED MADAME LUPESCU ARE FALSE

lawn of his villa) called out: "Helene."
Then turning to the correspondent Carol said:
"I welcome you here hoping that you will stop the absurd stories that are being printed all over the world about me. When I was living at Neully, every time I put my foot outside my home the rumors started."
Carol expressed the hope that the rumors concerning his future movements and his intentions would now end.
"I wish," said he, "that we could find a retreat where we could live in seclusion. This is an ideal place to live and I hope its location is not found out."
The chateau property consists of several hundred acres under cultivation by tenant farmers. It is in a desirable district. The nearest neighbors (aside from the farmers living on the chateau grounds) are twenty miles away. The nearest railway station is the same distance away.
The railway station is on a branch line and only two trains pass daily. There is a lane rather than a roadway leading past the chateau. A great driveway (larger than the outside road) leads up between ancient oak trees. The chateau is about a mile from the roadway.
Carol was found sitting at the wheel of a motor car. He was attired in a tennis outfit. He was accompanied by a young Roumanian who is acting as his secretary.
This young Roumanian is believed to be a sort of political adviser to Carol. Belief is held in some quarters, that if Carol should attempt to gain the Roumanian throne, the young Roumanian who is acting as his secretary will largely direct his actions.
Carol had just finished several sets of tennis. His first question to the reporter was:
"Have they learned my whereabouts in Paris?"
Then he added, leaning forward to give emphasis to his words:
"If my address is not known, you must keep this place in the strictest confidence. My purpose in buying this chateau from Helene was to give us privacy and to get away from the newspapers."
"We were spied upon and watched at Neully. I wanted to get away from that. I hope that we have found peace and tranquility here at last."
At this point Mme. Lupescu emerged from the chateau. She smiled brightly as she approached the reporter and offered her hand. Carol explained the rumors of his break that were being printed in Europe and America. Mme. Lupescu listened with a look of amusement upon her face, then turning to the correspondent she said:
"I imagine it will not be difficult for you to tell the readers of your newspapers how happy we are here together."
She linked arms with Carol and looked up into his eyes.

THE LADY CALLED FATE
BY JOSEPHINE K. LITTLEJOHN
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Morton finds himself in Mexico.
Here he meets the girl—Ruth Henshaw—who needs his help. He also meets her uncle, Barton Henshaw, as well as Rodriguez, Lopez, Clench, Ramon, the Ambassador, and Wong, the Chinese cook. John finds that Morton is involved in an arms plot with Henshaw and his friends and is warned to get Ruth out of the country. First Clench, then Wong are murdered, and John flees the country on horseback with Ruth. They take refuge in a cave.
CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
From the cave entrance he took a last survey of the storm-swept mesa. If danger stalked him through the night, let it come—here and now! He would hold his own!
He went into the cave where a girl slept beside the fire he had made for her.
No one in the world, not even the few who knew him best, and loved him well, had ever seen on the face of Poker-Face Moore the look that was on it then. And no one saw it now, unless the girl sleeping there saw it in her dreams.
When he had built up the fire and eaten his share of the tortillas and beans with several cups of the strong black coffee, he settled himself with his pipe on the far side of the fire, leaning back against his saddle.
He was deeply content.
Outside there was cold and rain and threatening danger; but here by the fire the girl—his girl—rested, warm and secure. There was hot food for her when she should awake, pass; and a man to guard her well. He felt confidence in his ability to protect her.
He glanced across at her. There were still shadows beneath her eyes, but the look of horror had gone.
"If I can get her away from this country at once and prevent her ever hearing of that man again!"
The smoke from his pipe floated up to the heavier smoke at the top of the cave and swirled it out at the entrance. And John Moore, watching it, dreamed dreams and saw visions while the long hours of the night stole by the cave door.
At eleven o'clock he put fresh wood on the fire and looked at his watch. "A lot might happen between now and train time," he mused, "but I doubt it."
He sat leaning forward, listening, his pipe suddenly clenched hard in his hand.
The steady tattoo of the rain on the road, the whistling breath of the wind; nothing—ah!
As he emptied his pipe with one hand he reached for the water canteen with the other. The water gurgled out on the fire which sputtered and died beneath choking smoke.
Ruth Henshaw sat up gasping for breath and called out: "Mr. Moore!"
"I put out the fire, Miss Henshaw. The smoke will clear in a moment."
"But why did you do it? Where are you? What is it?"
John Moore found her groping hand and held it. "I don't know yet, myself," he said. "I am just taking precautions. I told you that was a—"
"What is that sound?" interrupted the girl.
"That's it. There's a motor car on the grade."
"You think—"
"No, I don't, really. But I'm taking chances. You will stay here—"
"Where are you going? Let me go, too!"
"I am only going down the road a few yards. I've blocked the road there. When the car stops I can see who is in it—before they see me. It is perfectly safe—you see. But you must stay here. You have the gun?"
"What will you do if—"
John patted her hand as if she were a child. "I don't know. But don't you worry about it. There she comes. I must go."
"If they hurt you—"
"They won't!" John called to her, and was gone.
With the exhausts roaring, wide open, her headlights throwing fiery ribbons ahead of her, the car rounded the lower end of the horseshoe curve, nosed in toward the mountain again and raced down the road.
"Mad driving on a wet night," muttered John Moore. He gripped his gun and waited.
"Ohhhhh!"
It was a wild, prolonged shriek from some inmate of the machine. It echoed far out over the valley as the great ribbons of light struck the fallen tree; it sounded again, "Scheeew!" to the accompaniment of grinding brakes, as the great car slid to a sudden halt.
Silence.
Then a man's voice from the car. "I always knew that song of yours would wreck something! Look what it did to the tree!"
"Tree?" came a second voice, deep and smooth, with chuckling ripples beneath its surface. "No tree can disturb the even tenor of my song. 'Scheeew!' laid more eggs than any hen on the farm—"
The song stopped abruptly.
Two men jumped down from the car and stood peering about them.
"I know that voice," said the first man, who had spoken.
John Moore stepped into the light of the car lamps. "You both know me; it's John Moore," he said.
"Well, well, welcome stranger!" chuckled Beechy.
"Hello, Joe," greeted Stuart Long.
"I thought I knew your voice." Making a trumpet of his hands John shouted towards the cave. "It's all right!"
Then he looked from one face to the other. In both faces he saw that half-quizzical merriment which was a part of their armor, but no trace of surprise at his sudden appearance, no suspicion of questioning. They liked him; they accepted him as a friend; what he did was his own concern. Their absolute friendliness tied his tongue for an instant.
"Have a cigarette?" Beechy produced a silver case. "We can smoke in the car."
"Aw," Stuart protested, "he doesn't want your fancy line. Be truly rolled with me, Joe, and roll your own. Here's the machine's!"
"Thanks, you two," said John Moore. "I'll smoke later. I stopped your car—"
"Stew maligned my song," murmured Beechy.
"There's a girl with me in the cave up there," John went on gravely. "The gaze of the men to whom he spoke, suddenly concentrated on his face. They were still friendly, but no longer smiling.
"You know her, both of you. It is Miss Henshaw."
"Ruth Henshaw?" ejaculated Stuart Long.
"Yes."
"What's she doing there with you?" It was more a demand than a question from Stew.
"It's a long story!"
"We'll hear it," put in Beechy, deliberately. There was no chuckle in his voice.
"What a man did was his own concern—until it involved a good woman; then it became the concern of all decent men. That was their simple creed as they lived it.
"You're all right; you two!" said John Moore. "Listen. When I left you the other night at the Santa Rita I thought I was in a taxi, bound for the railroad station."
"Weren't you?"
"No. I was in the car that had come for Morton."
"Ah!"
"I didn't guess it until I woke up next morning in Sasabe, across the border."
"Well, I'll be—"
"I met there the foreman of the Henshaw ranch; a fine Mexican; Ramon Gonzales."
"We know him," said Stuart.
"Why, he—"
"He persuaded me that Miss Henshaw was in trouble."
"Where had you known her?"
"I didn't know her. But you remember the picture Morton stuck up against the tequila bottle?"
"I didn't pay any attention to it."
"Nor I."
"You weren't meant to. It was turned toward me. I put it in my pocket to get it away from him. It was Miss Henshaw's picture."
"If we'd known that—"
"Let him go on, Stew." (To be continued.)

The Theater

Barbara Frietchie, Frederick, Md., a direct descendant and namesake of the famous Civil War heroine, will make her first stage appearance next week in "My Maryland," which is based upon the historical episode.

Miss Frietchie has an excellent soprano voice and seems destined to make a name for herself in the theater. She will appear with the southern company of the operetta for several months and will then be transferred to the cast at Jolson's Theater, in which Evelyn Herbert is featured. There is said to be every likelihood that she will eventually play the leading role on tour, which will be perhaps the first time on record of an actress who impersonates her own ancestor and whose name is the same as that of her forebear.

The Messrs. Shubert have announced that they have changed the title of their newest operetta, "Bonita," to "The Love Call," and that the play will have its Metropolitan premiere Monday evening, October 24. The score is by Edward Locke and the lyrics are by Harry B. Smith. The most important of the new arrivals among pictures on Broadway is Fred Thomson's big thriller "Jesse James," which goes in for an extended run at the Rialto at popular prices. Two comedy teams are running neck and neck on the same street: Chester Conklin and George Bancroft in "Tell it to Sweeney," and Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in "Fireman, Save My Child." The big specials in addition to "Wings" include Al Jolson's "The Jazz Singer," "King of Kings," "Sunrise," "The Garden of Allah" and "The Patent Leather Kid."

Willie Howard, singing comedian in George White's "Scandals" was injured seriously last Tuesday when the taxicab in which he was riding to the theater was struck by another motor car. His nose was broken and he was hurt severely about the head. Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer and promoter of motion picture enterprises, was discharged this week from bankruptcy in Federal Court, New York. In 1926, Morosco filed a petition in bankruptcy listing liabilities of $1,032,404 and no assets save old clothing.

PRISON BARS HALT PROMISING CAREER

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Evening Gazette

AURORA, Ill., Oct. 22—A month ago, John L. Esser was an influential citizen of Aurora, looked upon as a young wizard of finance. He was honored, respected.

He had a beautiful home, charming wife, talented and alert children; virtually everything men strive to attain.

Today he looks through prison bars. His face is lined with worry and remorse. For company, he has a drug addict, a forger, and a petty thief.

Blames Gambling
He is charged with the embezzlement of a fortune in funds of the Aurora Trust and Savings Bank, of which he was president.

Esser estimates he took $328,000 from the bank, and $90,000 from his friends. He says there is nothing left except a small amount which may be salvaged from real estate.

Gambling tables and poor investments claimed the rest, he admits.

Esser's rise to success was as fiction-like as his downfall.

His first job was that of a messenger boy for a telegraph company at $10 a week. He had only a grade school education, and by sheer force of personality, ability and work, he started on the upward grade, to become, at the age of 28, the head of one of the largest financial institutions in the city.

Elect New President
The day the auditors entered the bank and uncovered his shortage, Esser was giving a party for a number of friends at a country club near Chicago. Passing the bank in the evening, he saw the auditors at work.

He knew what they would find. He called the directors of the bank, and told them where he could be found.

The auditors uncovered shortages of more than $100,000, with indication of much more. A hurried meeting of the directors was called, and a new president was elected.

The Aurora National Bank may take over the assets and liabilities of the Esser bank. If this is done, no loss will be felt by depositors, authorities say.

JIMMY JAMS
MAYBE IT'S 'BOUT TIME I STARTED TELLIN' POP WHAT I WANT FOR CHRISTMAS. SO THAT HE'LL HAVE PLENTY OF TIME TO SAVE UP FOR IT.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

My Dear Followers:

When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered. — Lulu Hunt Peters.

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers. — Jewish Proverb.

Exercises for the Baby
One very good exercise to prevent spinal curvature is creeping, and it is also a good exercise to help overcome it.

In the exercise of creeping, or walking on all fours, the muscles of the back and neck are vigorously exercised; the head is held up and the chest is pushed forward, and the soft bones of the baby are thus molded into the right shape for an erect posture. Don't try to teach your children to stand and walk (they will take these up when they are ready for them), but do encourage them to creep as long as possible. Even after they're old enough to run and walk, it's a good idea to plan some animal games every day and have them imitate the walking of animals. Join them yourselves!

Children, even before they begin to creep, should be given some systematic exercises. Dr. Edward T. Wilkes, in his very interesting little book, "Baby's Daily Exercises," tells that in Germany there is being conducted a campaign for the adoption of infant gymnastics in the daily life of all German babies. They are systematically exercising the babies in the Kaiser's Algaute Victoria Home for Infants, in Berlin, and they have found that the babies become steadier in their movements and their musculature is much improved. In Scotland, Dr. Leonard Findlay, one of the leading child specialists, is bringing the need of exercises for infants before the public. His experiments indicate that rickets are not so likely to develop in babies who receive exercise. In Austria, Professor Hamburger introduced a series of exercises for babies beginning at five months of age. He compared the babies who were given exercises with babies who had received none (both were having the same care otherwise), and he found that they were healthier and physically better developed. They were more dextrous, had fewer accidents, took falls with laughter, and in every way indicated that they had healthy nervous systems.

Dr. Wilkes says that all the babies in his private practice and clinic work have been given exercises, and he notes the same thing that doctors in other countries do. He reports that the babies are also not so apt to catch cold and contract respiratory diseases because the deep respirations resulting from the exercises, as well as the exercise, help to develop the chest.

The exercises should be begun when the baby is five months old, and introduced gradually. Usually, after two or three weeks he is getting quite a regime. They should be given on a table pushed back against the wall and covered with a blanket or quilt. The best time to give them is just before the baby's bath and before a feeding. All the clothing should be removed.

You mustn't grasp the baby by the joints, and you mustn't pull the head or limbs backward. Of course, the room should be light, airy, at the proper temperature, and free from drafts.

If you are interested in baby exercises, you should get a copy of Dr. Wilkes' book. We have a list of other books recommended for parents and guardians of children, which you may have by sending a fully self addressed and stamped envelope with your request.

Colic
Mrs. F.—Colic is a spasm of the muscles in the intestines. It is a reflex irritation which may be caused by gas, from fermentation of undigested food due to improper feeding. It is generally believed that over-feeding is the most frequent cause, but under feeding can cause it also. Irregularity of feeding may result in over-feeding, but even if the child is fed at regular intervals it may have colic. I know one children's specialist who claims that most of the colic he has ever seen is due to hunger. Take your baby to a children's specialist, if possible, or to a baby clinic and have him and his formula checked up, Mrs. F.

GOES UP, TURNS AROUND, COMES DOWN AGAIN

Mrs. Frances Grayson, aviator who hopes to fly to Denmark, made her second false start Saturday morning. She turned her plane back when she said it refused to gain altitude, the same reason for which it was returned after the first false start.

FAILURE AT GENEVA WILL FORCE BIGGER NAVY SAYS WILLIS

Ohio Senator Says Na- tional Defense Com- ing Problem

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The United States must build the greatest air force in the world and materially strengthen the American navy as a result of the failure of the Geneva disarmament conference, Senator Willis (R) of Ohio, declared today in outlining a legislative program for the new congress.

“Blood relief, farm relief and putting new teeth in the national defense,” Willis said, were the outstanding legislative problems facing congress. Because of the expenditures necessitated by this program, he added, tax reduction legislation would have to be limited to a $250,000,000 slash.

“Since the Geneva conference failed,” Willis said, “we must strengthen our navy. It is unfortunate but the United States cannot become a power for world peace unless we are properly armed. We must develop an aviation program of considerable proportions. It cannot be avoided any longer.

“America has the best fliers in the world. We have the Lindberghs, the Byrds and the Chamberlains but we haven't the military material. Therefore we must develop the greatest aviation program in the world.”

Willis declared tax relief would have to be held to $250,000,000 because the costs of farm relief, Mississippi flood relief and the national defense programs cannot be estimated now. He particularly stressed the need for large appropriations to strengthen levees, build reservoirs and erect spillways along the Mississippi in order to free that valley from the danger of future floods.

U. S. OFFICIAL INDICTED BY JURY

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 22.—Frank G. Thomson, United States commissioner here, today was arraigned in federal court on a charge of conspiracy, following his indictment by a federal grand jury late Friday.

Thomson's bond of $2,000 was continued. He with his stenographer, Ruth Hollinger and Jack Thomas were arrested several days ago when $300 is alleged to have been paid to Miss Hollinger by Charles Rafful who sought leniency in a liquor case.

Thomson declares the money was accepted as payment for stock Rafful wished to purchase.

SECOND GRAYSON ATTEMPT FAILS

PLANE RETURNED TO FIELD AFTER FALSE START ON SATURDAY

Inability To Cause Plane To Rise Is Again Blamed

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 22.—Shortly after taking off early today on an attempted non-stop flight to Copenhagen in her plane “The Dawn,” Mrs. Frances Grayson returned to the starting point.

“We just could not make her rise,” was Mrs. Grayson's explanation of her second false start across the ocean.

Shortly after the plane containing Mrs. Grayson, Wilmer Stultz, her pilot, and Brice Goldsborough, navigator, had been lost to sight, it again appeared, flying low.

It headed straight for the beach here and when a little off shore, settled on the water and began circling about.

Stultz then let down his landing gear and brought “The Dawn” back into the hangar. Climbing out of the plane, Mrs. Grayson said:

“We were going down wind all the time and we just could not make her rise. I believe we had too much of a load; you see, we had 921 gallons of gasoline aboard. This is more than we've ever carried.”

Mrs. Grayson added that they had reached a point about two miles beyond the Cape Elizabeth lighthouse when they noticed that “The Dawn” would not climb. They then decided not to take the risk of going further.

Most of the way out to the Cape Elizabeth lighthouse and back “The Dawn” was almost skimming the water. The wind was from the south southwest quarter, just the wind Mrs. Grayson had been waiting for to aid in lifting the heavy load of between eleven and twelve thousand pounds.

“The Dawn” was so close to the water in coming toward the beach that Pilot Stultz found he could not make a landing without digging the nose into the sand, so that he skillfully made a landing on the water. The cabin was sprayed by the waves.

Undaunted, Mrs. Grayson ordered another supply of gasoline, for part of the supply on “The Dawn” had been dumped by Navigator Goldsborough.

This was the second false start of “The Dawn.” Last Monday she was “down by the nose” with gasoline in the forward tanks and had to return in less than a quarter of an hour after the take-off. The load was equalized, and then followed a long wait for a favorable west southwest wind.

Sikorsky, builder of the plane, and other aviation experts here went into conference to devise some way of getting the plane into the air. One plan was to reduce the gasoline supply. This would permit only a flight to England. Mrs. Grayson said she would be satisfied if she could span the ocean, refuel, and proceed to Copenhagen. Another take off between 5 and 6 p. m. was under discussion.

Finally it was decided that unless conditions were absolutely perfect late today another take off would be deferred until 7 a. m. Sunday.

Pilot Stultz balked at an evening take off, because he said it would mean two nights over the water. Every indication was “The Dawn” would not attempt to leave again until Sunday morning.

Stultz in safety bringing “The Dawn” back to the beach displayed unusual aviation skill. Stultz said:

“We traveled about twenty miles. At times we were only six inches above the water. At no time were we more than thirty feet up. We were running about one hundred and twenty-five miles an hour. Would not slow her up for fear of hitting the water nose on. We had to dump 250 gallons of gasoline to lighten her load. Several times we thought we were going to crash, but I finally got her back. When we took off again we will go back to our original load of 850 gallons of gasoline. We will probably start again Sunday morning, for what we want now is a little headwind off shore to give us a lift in sending the plane into the air.”

CONSPIRACY TRIAL RESTS; ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE URGED

Government Wants To Read Testimony Be- fore Committee

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial rested over the week-end while Justice Frederick Siddons meditated today over the question of admitting into evidence the testimony the oil magnate gave in 1923 to the senate committee that turned up the oil scandals of the Harding administration.

Owen J. Roberts, government counsel, is seeking to read to the jury Harry F. Sinclair's admission to the Walsh committee that during the Christmas holidays in 1921 he and his attorney, the late J. W. Zevely, went to the ranch of ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall at Three Rivers, New Mexico for the express purpose of “seeing him about Teapot Dome.” Roberts considers this important to his case as laying the foundation of proof Fall conspired with Sinclair to turn over the rich naval oil reserve to the latter without seeking bids in open competition.

The defense is fighting admission of the senate record under the statute which states that testimony given before a committee of either house of congress may not be used against the witness in any subsequent criminal action other than perjury.

Roberts and Martin W. Littleton, Sinclair attorney, argued that inasmuch as Sinclair had not pleaded such immunity at the time he appeared before the senate committee, he was not entitled to protection under the statute.

Siddons' decision is expected Monday morning when court convenes. Roberts has admitted his case “will be hurt” if the ruling is adverse to the government, but he is hopeful it will favor him in that he succeeded in reading the senate records to the jury in the Fall-Doheny trial over similar objections.

DODGE TO TESTIFY AGAINST REMUS

Carroll More Cheerful

EN ROUTE WITH EARL CARROLL, BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 22.—Earl Carroll, speeding toward Broadway and a “come back” from prison life, today displayed for the first time since he emerged from the prison gates Thursday night a zest for life and work and a cheerfulness that had been lacking in his grave, shy demeanor.

He awakened at dawn with the habit of prison routine still upon him. He greeted the day in a suit of flaming purple pajamas, quite a contrast to the blue denim he had worn in Atlanta as convict 24909. He talked in a strain that differed from his prison conversation, as if his philosophy is ripening with reflection.

“In prison,” Carroll said, after a hearty breakfast, “there is work and companionship and men's interests. I found them all, but it strikes me that the true horror of prison life lies in the fact that there are no women in that world. I don't mean women from the viewpoint of sex but from the point of beauty and tenderness. I mean the color that women give to life and that is reflected in the stores and shops of our cities, gleaming with articles for women's joy and adornment.”

To all intents and purposes, Carroll is still a prisoner under the unending surveillance of the government and must continue thus until March 28, when his term of imprisonment would have expired.

“I have no disposition to violate any of the rules,” said Carroll, “and my personal habits would keep me safe from violating the terms of my parole in that respect, but the burden of the obligations that are imposed, the sense of watchfulness that is upon me, the feeling that I am still in custody, are disheartening circumstances.”

“Frankly, my will to pick up my work and my ambition need a stimulation. Something may come soon, when I drift into my work, but just now I have no plans and no energy to work.”

“For five months I have lived without planning, without thought of anything except the job at hand.”

FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION IS OVERSHADOWING TAX PROBLEM

President And Cabinet Consider Question—Insur- gents Meeting To Find Solution Of Same Question

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Agricultural relief legislation today overshadowed even tax reduction as the major problem under consideration in administration as well as in congressional circles.

While the insurgent bloc on Capitol Hill studied various plans in the hope of drafting a new farm bill, President Coolidge and his cabinet advisers were reported to be giving the subject constant consideration. The outcome probably will be in the introduction of at least two new farm bills as soon as congress convenes.

The president was said to be giving more time to consideration of the farm problem than to any other subject at this time. His advisers are compiling data on which the administration may base a new bill. It was said the president feels the necessity of agriculture legislation and that he is now willing to go much further to provide relief than he was a year ago. He is still opposed to the equalization fee on constitutional grounds.

The insurgents after a series of minor conferences, will meet Monday morning in a group to discuss the farm problem and the outlook for legislative relief.

One plan, favored by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, (R), of Iowa would eliminate the equalization fee but compel the government to stand the losses of a federal export corporation, intended to buy the surplus crop at a fixed price to sell them later abroad at the world market price. Eventually, the Brookhart plan would have the farmers pay the bill.

The insurgents, however, will not be willing to drop the equalization fee, which featured McNary-Haugen bill last year, unless the substitute plan is certain to dispose of crop surpluses. If Brookhart can

PROSECUTOR WILL USE INVESTIGATOR AS STATE WITNESS

Defense Counsel Says He Is Pleased With Program

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., will testify against George L. Remus, former “King of the Bootleggers” when he is tried for the murder of his wife, Imogene Remus, at Cincinnati last month.

“The former ace of the department of justice will be a state's witness,” announced Carl E. Basler, first assistant county prosecutor, today.

The decision to use Dodge as a witness came after a long conference between the alleged lover of Mrs. Remus and Basler, today.

“I will testify at any proceeding where I am a party,” admitted Dodge. “I will be in Cincinnati next month for the trial and I have most certainly been made a party to his trial by his lies and his vicious attacks on my character.”

“There is nothing for me to fear. My relations with Mrs. Remus were legitimate, I will prove that,” said Dodge.

“George Remus is a coward,” as asserted the former agent.

“If he were not a coward, why didn't he murder me rather than kill that poor defenseless woman? I did not hide from him. He knew where I was all the time.”

Attorney Charles Elston, counsel for the defense, appeared pleased rather than annoyed when he heard of the prosecution's newest plan. “No, nothing would please me more,” commented Elston.

“With the information I received from the department of justice yesterday, and other evidence, I will develop, I will shoot his testimony full of holes. He cannot truthfully deny my client's charges against him. If Dodge testifies, Remus is a free man.”

The deposition party will spend the remainder of the week in New York. It is expected Morris Sweetwood and Mamie Kessler, New York bootleg kings, will give depositions today. Kessler and Sweetwood served in Atlanta with Remus for violation of the prohibition act, and are expected to give information concerning the relationship of Dodge and Mrs. Remus.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—While wild rumors from Berlin, Vienna and Bucharest circulated today, claiming that former Crown Prince Carol, of Roumania, had deserted Magda Helene Lupescu, his beautiful red-haired companion, Carol and Magda were spending a quiet day at the former's newly purchased chateau 100 miles from this city.

The report that Carol was on his way back to Roumania was proved untrue when it was learned that the former crown prince and his charmer were at the chateau.

“It is all a lot of rot,” exclaimed Carol when told of the rumors that have been in circulation in Berlin, Vienna and Bucharest for the past week. “This is not the first time that my earnest efforts to have privacy caused various rumors of my whereabouts to be spread abroad.”

“I can only repeat what I told International News Service last winter when newspapers all over the world had me at Rapallo, that is, I was never away a single day from the villa I was occupying at that time at Neuilly, just outside of Paris.”

“I shall never speak into Roumania—my native land. If I go at all I will go openly and honestly like a real man who has nothing to conceal. I will never go quietly and under cover like one who is afraid.”

The International News Service correspondent visited Carol's chateau by special invitation to deny the rumors that have been printed all over the world the past few days—rumors that had Carol and Magda on their way to Bucharest secretly. One of them had gone so far as to say that the peasants of Roumania had invited Carol to return to oust his baby son from the throne.

When he was shown newspaper clippings telling of his alleged break with his beautiful companion Carol (who was standing in the

DEMOCRATS WOULD RAISE TAX SLICE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The Democratic program for tax reduc- tion will exceed $400,000,000, Rep. Collier, (D), of Mississippi, a mem- ber of the house ways and means committee which will initiate the tax revision bill, asserted here to- day.

“Every proposal made by a Republican leader thus far for tax reduction is less than the treasury can stand,” said Collier. “The president has declared that a $350,000,000 tax cut is too much, but I believe that it should not be less than $400,000,000.”

Reduction in corporation taxes and abolition of many “insane” taxes were predicted by Collier.

Although flood relief legislation must take precedence over every other bill, the financing of this program will not halt tax reduction, he asserted.

STOLE ALUMINUM

DAYTON, O., Oct. 22.—Four men are held here today, following the sale of 1,400 pounds of alleged stol- en aluminum worth 40 cents a pound, which police say they sold for eleven cents a pound. Those held are John Mills, 22, Floyd Mor- row, 19, negroes, and Abe Horn and Ben Weprin, the latter two charged with buying the metal, which was stolen from the Consolidated Manu- facturing Co.

PATRICK CARDINAL O'DONNELL DIES; WAS ILL FOR TWO WEEKS

BELFAST, Oct. 22.—Patrick Card- inal O'Donnell died at 11:15 o'clock this morning at Carlingford after a fortnight's illness.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Patrick Cardinal O'Donnell, former rector of the University of Ireland, is dead at the age of seventy-one, according to a Central News dispatch from Belfast today. He was created cardinal in 1925.

Cardinal O'Donnell was born at

AMBASSADOR WOULD LEAVE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE IN FRANCE

Dwight Davis Leading Candidate—Post Is Serious One

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France at the start of the world war, and who returned to Paris in 1921, has signified to President Coolidge his desire to be relieved of his post as soon as the administration can conveniently choose his successor it was learned here today.

Advancing years and ill health have been ascribed as the causes. Ambassador Herrick returned from France in mid-summer and since that time has undergone two operations. His recovery has been slow, and his general condition is such that he has yielded to the advice of friends and relatives that he should give up his post. He recently passed his 73rd birthday.

No announcement has been made of the Ambassador's decision and it is probable that Myron Herrick will be made until Washington is ready to announce at the same time his successor. Officially Ambassador Herrick is recuperating from an illness and expects to resume his post some time before the end of the year, but it is understood that if he returns to France at all it will only be to wind up his affairs there.

There is no dearth of candidates for the Paris embassy, which, next to London, is considered the prize post in the American diplomatic service. It is partly for this reason that Ambassador Herrick's contemplated retirement is being kept as quiet as possible. President Coolidge does not wish to be embarrassed by a general scramble for the post.

One of the leading candidates, however, is now a member of the cabinet—Dwight W. Davis, Secretary of War. Representations in Secretary Davis' behalf have already been made to the White House, although with what success has not been determined.

Davis is said to have long desired a diplomatic post. He is independently wealthy, and is considered “available.”

Another possible candidate is George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania, who retired from the senate following his defeat in the Pennsylvania primary. Pepper, who was supported politically by the Mellon organization in Pennsylvania, also is considered “available.”

The French post is considered a particularly difficult one at this time owing to the numerous important problems confronting the two governments. The question of the French war debt settlement, as yet unrattified by the French Parliament, is by itself a problem of monumental diplomatic proportions. There is also the tariff dispute which will require extended negotiation before yielding to settlement. There are collateral problems of sufficient numbers and importance to make the Paris post a lively one for the next few years.

BAR ASSOCIATION WILL DRAFT BILL; OPPOSE FEE SYSTEM

Measure Is Favored Over Marshall Bill Is Said

COSHOCTON, Ohio, Oct. 22.—Though the Ohio State Bar Association is taking no active part in the referendum on the Marshall Justice of the Peace fee bill, as an organization, leading members of the association are opposed to the bill because known here today when C. B. Hunt, president of the association, in a letter to the Coshocton Tribune, disclosed that a committee had been named to draft a bill providing for a salary system. This proposed bill will be presented to the State Bar Association at its January meeting at Columbus, according to Hunt's letter.

The committee named to draft the proposed bill includes: James A. White, chairman, Columbus; Judge L. G. Worstell, Athens; W. L. Hart, Alliance, and W. E. Teegarden, Greenville.

Gardner Hunt's letter to the Tribune reads in part:

“The matter of reform in the procedure of justice courts has been considered by our association for two years. At the annual meeting last July President McCabe appointed a special committee to prepare a bill providing for the districting of counties for election of justices of the peace and for a salary system in place of fees.

“Our association as an organization is taking no part in the controversy about the Marshall bill, but we are anxious to change the fee system to a salary system, which the present law fails to do. The committee will report to the mid-winter session.”

WRITES TO FRIENDS AND CUTS WRISTS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—Sever- al friends of David Meyerowitz, 48, were shocked when they received notes from him declaring, “While you are reading these lines the writer is lying dead at room 119, Doanbrook Hotel.” Meyerowitz was found in the hotel with his wrists and throat slashed, but the would-be-suicide was rushed to a hospital and is expected to recover.

AFTERNOON PARTY FOR BRIDE-ELECT ON FRIDAY

Miss Aletha Conklin, bride-elect of Mr. Robert Gagner, this city, was "showered" with an array of handsome miscellaneous gifts, by the one hundred and twenty-five guests received at the home of Mrs. R. B. McKay, Wilmington Pike, Friday afternoon.

The McKay home was decorated in yellow and black, Hallowe'en to be used in profusion to carry out the seasonable idea. Mrs. McKay was assisted in dispensing the hospitalities by Mrs. David Panter, Mrs. Mary Painter, Mrs. Herbert Conklin, Mrs. Floyd Weaver, Mrs. Alvin Conklin, Mrs. Bernard Haines, Mrs. Kenneth Cox and Mrs. Elwood Stroup. Games and contests amused the guests during the afternoon. A salad course with Hallowe'en appointments was served later.

SEWING CLUB CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY ON FRIDAY

A gift to each guest was presented by Mrs. Charles Haas when she entertained the Busy Twelve Sewing Club at her home on S. Detroit St., Friday afternoon. The gifts were concealed in a large basket, forming the centerpiece of the luncheon table and were presented on the occasion of the club's third "birthday."

Favors of tiny orange colored hats, in keeping with the Hallowe'en season, and filled with candy were found at each cover. A two-course luncheon was served. The forepart of the afternoon was spent by the club members with their sewing.

DANCING PARTY IS WELL ATTENDED FRIDAY

Good spirits prevailed at the dancing party entertained by Alpha Theta Chapter, Delta Theta Tau Sorority at the Parish House, Friday evening.

Between fifty and sixty couples attended the affair which was thoroughly enjoyed. Cliff Perrine's Orchestra, furnished a program of popular dance music for the guests and the good music lightened the informal merry-making.

Proceeds of the dance will be used by the sorority for charity work.

Mrs. Winifred B. Mason and Miss Mildred Mason, S. Detroit St., will spend the week end with relatives in New Castle, Ind.

Farm Notes

TO PROTECT FRUIT TREES

The orchardist's labor does not end with the harvesting and marketing of the fruit crop. Right after apple harvest is the time to inspect the orchard and fit it for winter if the trees are to come through the winter unharmed, says J. K. Kimber, county farm agent.

Grass and weeds should be removed from around the base of young trees. This is done to protect the trees from mice and other rodents that are likely to find in the grass and weeds an ideal winter refuge and then feed on the bark of the young trees and their roots.

After the grass and rubbish are removed soil is slightly mounded about the tree trunk to prevent water from collecting and standing at its base. Many trees are killed by winter injury because a depression near the base of the tree permits water to settle there during later winter or early spring.

This work takes but little time and may be done when the orchard is least busy. But as a matter of good insurance it should be done before winter.

PERFUME SPRAY FOR THEATERS IN PARIS IS LATEST WRINKLE

PARIS, Oct. 22.—French managers are now spraying their theaters with perfume, a sweet scent which effectively ejects every hygienic deodorant imposed by the health inspector. The liquid is sent whirling through the atmosphere by means of a giant golden pump which, by the way, was designed by one of Paris' smartest couturiers. It invades every corner of the house, the air clears instantly and the smoke and disagreeable odors of stale tobacco give way to floral odors. The washed air is thoroughly antiseptic due to the fact that all flower essences possess disinfectant properties.

During convention week in Paris chauffeurs flew little American flags on their taxis in honor of the Legionnaires. No doubt there was a little method in their madness; French chauffeurs are polite, but they are clever too. An official organ of the Soviets frightened a few of them who tucked them into their portfolios and only exhibited the American colors at the right moment, when searching for change. Yes, it usually worked with the generous Americans and the tips were royal ones.

A new cabaret has opened up in Paris. It is the "College Inn," in the rue Vavin, just opposite the Nordic favorite, the Vikings, and is presided over by the American Jed Kiley, who once had the same kind of a place in Montmartre. There is good jazz, excellent Charlestoning and everything is as gay as it should be.

For several days now the old castle of the Counts of Saint Pol has been the scene of a search which is arousing the curiosity of everyone living about there. Search is being made for the golden statue of Saint Pol, said to be hidden here. A spring-finder with her wand is doing it and while, exploring the cellar of the ancient castle she discovered ten underground passages radiating in various directions under the town. These passages are anterior to destruction of the town in 1537 by Charles V. and will be explored shortly.

Parisians will soon have the opportunity to see classical Chinese dramas played in Chinese in the real Chinese manner. After a lapse of six years, Mei Lanfang, supposed to be China's greatest actor, will make a tour of the largest cities in the world. There will be forty actors in his own company and his own orchestra of musicians, all of whom are well-known throughout China.

TWENTY THOUSAND CIGARS BURNED IN STOREROOM BLAZE

Twenty thousand cigars and 1,500 cigarettes are estimated to have been damaged by fire, water and smoke in a blaze of undetermined origin, which swept the interior of a store room in the rear of the Harness cigar store, 31 E. Main St., at 3:20 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The approximate loss is conservatively placed at $1,500, partially covered by insurance, by Orie A. Harness, proprietor of the store. Fire Chief William Hanifan has the fire under investigation. It is considered probable the blaze was caused by either a carelessly tossed cigarette or by defective electric wiring.

Firemen played water on the flames, used chemicals extensively and managed to confine the blaze in the rear warehouse where the entire stock is kept. The fire was brought under control soon and extinguished entirely in about one hour. A small hole was burned in the roof.

A check discovered that at least 400 boxes of cigars on the shelves were rendered valueless by smoke and water. Each box contained fifty cigars. The stock of cigarettes and other tobacco was small.

No damage resulted to the interior of the store proper.

BEACHAN INQUEST SET FOR TUESDAY

Formal inquest into circumstances surrounding the death of Ephraim Beachan, 46, colored, Birmingham, Ala., who was fatally shot by Fred O. Lincum, Pennsylvania Railroad detective, last Monday night, will be held Tuesday morning, October 25 at 9 o'clock in the office of Miss Elsie Canby, court stenographer, in the Court House.

This announcement was made Saturday by Coroner Frank M. Chambliss, who has definitely decided upon an investigation. As many as eight witnesses may be subpoenaed for the inquiry, Coroner Chambliss said.

GRANGE WILL MEET IN YELLOW SPRINGS

NEW GERMANY PIKE BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE FRIDAY NIGHT

Fire, which destroyed a small barn on a farm owned by A. H. Cosler, Dayton Pike, located on the New Germany Pike, five and one-half miles northwest of Xenia, late Friday night, is suspected of being of incendiary origin.

An estimate of the damage could not be obtained, but the loss is believed to be partially covered by insurance.

The building and the contents, including a Ford touring car, owned by Abraham Free, tenant on the farm, and a pile of straw and furniture, were consumed in the blaze. No animals or grain are kept in the barn.

Mr. Free was asleep when awakened by the light created by the flames, shining in the window of his bedroom, about 11:15 o'clock.

Because of lack of fire-fighting apparatus, the blaze could not be adequately fought and finally burned itself out.

Neighbors who hurried to the scene, assisted in throwing water on the farm house, situated near the burning barn, and prevented the residence from catching on fire, although the paint was blistered by the intense heat.

The barn was believed to have been used for storage purposes.

No explanation of the origin of the blaze could be offered but Free is quoted as saying that indications pointed to the work of a "fire bug."

SEEING THINGS IN BRIGHT COLORS

Where you find a bright and growing business, or an advancing community, you always find some enthusiastic people. They are sanguine, hopeful and confident. They speak in warm terms of their home community. They see its fine achievements and its admirable people. They praise its advantages and utter no words of detraction.

They are confident and hopeful about prospects in their own business. They see everything in bright colors. While that spirit can be overdone and may be exemplified with lack of judgment, it is one that promotes support and cooperation. People buy goods of a salesman of that type. They like to move into a town that is full of that kind of folk. Things go ahead faster in that kind of a town.

QUEER "PRINCIPLE"

In Cincinnati, one of the most notorious crooks of this generation is caught murdering his wife. This man is an ex-convict, bootlegger, briber, grafter and corrupter of government. And when he shoots his own wife down in a public place, he says to the reporters:

"I am a man of principle. I have never smoked, not even a cigar. I never drank intoxicants. I never swear."

Well, it would be idle to heap abuse upon George Remus. His day of mortal reckoning is upon him, and he will soon find himself without the friends that his millions of ill-gotten dollars once bought for him. His lot is sad enough.

But here may be observed an interesting human characteristic. It is difficult to find a man who does not think pretty well of himself. The most depraved criminals talk themselves completely out of breath, reciting their own virtues.

As a general thing, men are better at this than women. Sometimes a woman, in prison, in disgrace, or in a corner, will remain altogether silent, either because she is too badly scared to talk, because she is crying too hard to permit of speech, or because she retains enough womanly dignity to realize that there is nothing to be said.

But you seldom see a man who could not find plenty of words with which to make you understand that it wasn't his fault and that he is really quite a remarkable fellow whose good points have been overlooked.

Doesn't it seem rather remarkable that a man who has just committed murder can boast, self-righteously, that he does not use profane language or liquor or tobacco?

But that, again, is all too human. The great sins are the sins that we are not guilty of. The bank-robber will boast that he does not cheat at cards. The pickpocket will tell you how noble he is because he doesn't beat his wife. And Remus, with a woman's blood upon his hands, tells the world that he is a man of principle, for he neither drinks, smokes nor swears!

Although it is unfortunate for young people to get contagious diseases, it seems that little can be done to save them from falling in love.

An explosion of the sun is said to be possible, but many will say that moonshine is more likely to blow up.

The Way of the World

RAINBOWS FOR MEN

Bristol red, sunshine yellow, Black Hills and some other colors are announced as new shades for men's suits. Why not? Why must man somberly clothe himself in drab and let woman get away with all the beauty in the world in her raiment? We are too much the creatures of habit—habit without a real purpose behind it. It might add to the harmless gaiety of our lives if we had the courage to wear brighter colors.

CROPS

More good news from the figure makers. Crops for 1927 are reported better than for 1926. Corn is fair in the west and poor in the east. Wheat is good in part of the country and fair elsewhere. If somebody between the farmer and the city dinner table doesn't make too much money, we may have lower food prices. As it is, food prices are lower than they were a few years ago. In the midst of much to criticize let's take time to be grateful for a thing now and then.

SAPPODILS

Sappodil is a new word and a good one. It is a combination of sap and daffodil. A sap is a fool or nearly a fool. A sap who is pleasant and agreeable and an easy mark at the same time is a sappodil. He is gentle, like a daffodil, but he doesn't amount to much. To be a "good fellow" unless it helps somebody who needs help or achieves a distinctly worthwhile result is not worth the effort. Too many "good fellows" are what they are simply because they haven't the courage to be anything better.

SPEEDING UP

If you don't believe the world is changing, note the proposed law in Cook county, Illinois, where Chicago is located. Commissioners are considering a resolution to set a minimum of 20 miles an hour for motor cars on main highways. Let us hope to move faster whether you want to or not. The old world loiters less—and is less happy as loitering goes out of fashion.

JUDGE IS RIGHT

A Wisconsin judge refused a foreigner his citizenship papers because the man had been convicted of driving an auto when drunk. He will have to wait five years more for his next naturalization process. This is a wise judge. A man who will equip himself for murder by driving an auto when he is drunk ought to wait in jail until citizenship papers are granted. And then he ought not to get them.

New Yorker

By

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. — The most pitiful exiles this week in our city were two mallard ducks caught in the pent house on the roof of the Hotel Belvedere. In Forty-eighth street, the ducks had been wounded in the leg, and his mate tried jealously to guard him when two workmen mending a leak in the coping, captured them. The manager of the Belvedere humanely put the devoted couple up for the week, until the male's wound was strong enough to bear him up again. The bell boy who brought the two birds water and biscuits found their presence in the hostile far more exciting than ever that of the occasional stage people who patronize the place.

There's a rosy checked Brooklyn girl with Irish eyes who runs the tower building elevator in the Woolworth building. Her beauty secret, she tells anyone who cares to know, is living in high altitudes. Swiss mountain climbers and trappers to the Grand Canyon have nothing on her. Of course, at night she has to leave her eyes and trapper home by way of the underground railway to Brooklyn, but she gulps down so much fresh ozone all day long that her school girl complexion is the envy of all the girls in Canarsie, Prospect Heights and Greenpoint.

Panorama of New York. Water main burst in Fifth avenue above Ninety-sixth street provides playtime puddles for all the children in the neighborhood. Hispano Suizas and Fords plough bravely through it, splashing rich and poor alike. Three mere males sit disconsolately on the bottom step of the flight leading up to the Bronx Maternity Hospital, obviously awaiting the good news. An elderly gentleman in correct English clothes unpacks his intimate garments in the center room of Pennsylvania Station, oblivious to the sly smiles of the populace. Tired immigrants sprawl on their heaps of luggage in a balcony overlooking the main part of Grand Central, listening drowsily to the admonitions of the Travelers' Aid ladies who mean so well but scare them to death. Dozens of dashing undergraduates in equally dashing new outfits bustle by, bound for New Haven and Cambridge. I try at three different shops to buy "The Canary Murder Case" for a friend who's starting on a cross continent journey, and get the "sold out" sign at each shop. At the last place the girl clerk suggests "Mother India" as a likely substitute.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly
Habit as Marriage Aid

A young man told me a number of interesting facts about his approaching marriage. For some time he has been "keeping company"—as we used to say in the Middle West—with an attractive young woman. He went to see her every Sunday night, and one night in between he usually took her to a movie or a dance. On other nights he preferred to stay home and read. He had never felt more than a pure academic interest in marriage. It did not appeal to him as a thing for personal application.

His theory was that he could maintain romance at a higher pitch by confining his sentimental moods to Sunday evenings and one night between—say, Wednesday or Thursday. He would have been content to go along indefinitely on that basis.

But other young men found the same young woman very attractive. In pany and volunteered to drop in to see her or escort her to social gatherings.

One or two of these young men talked engagingly about the fascinating subject of marriage. The consequence was that my friend, the Sunday-night caller, had to make a choice between marrying the estimable and charming young woman himself, or of losing her company for good and all.

He did not decide instantly, but weighed the relative advantages of avoiding marriage, or being lonely one or two evenings a week, and of taking a fresh start elsewhere.

"I have grown so accustomed to spending my Sunday evenings with her," he said, "that I shouldn't know what to do with myself without a sweetheart. It might require a year to find another girl equally congenial."

He decided to marry her rather than lose her entirely and have to look about for a new girl. Yet he was frank to say that he didn't much like the idea of being married.

Ever since he told me this I have been wondering how many marriages take place because a man or a woman who doesn't want to be married shirks the annoyance of hunting up a new companion as insurance against occasional lonely evenings.

HE SHOULD KNOW

A boastful American had been admitted to heaven and was talking "splurgingly" about Niagara Falls. Someone near him laughed aloud.

"Maybe," said the talkative one from the U. S., "you don't think 8,000,000 cubic feet of water pass over them every second. Maybe you don't think that is a lot of water? Might I ask your name, sir?" The one who had laughed aloud said softly: "Certainly. It's NOAH!"

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

BROODING OVER PAST NO HELP

A girl, caught in the web of circumstances, strayed from the narrow path. Heartbroken she asks whether she still has the right to expect happiness in life. Will the one man, whom she longs some day to meet, forgive? The letter below tells a pathetic little story:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have a good home with my foster mother. I would like to get acquainted with a man that will do the right thing by me and I sure will do everything in my power to make a good home for him. My foster mother did not tell me anything about the ways of the world and I fell into a misfortune, but these dear good people did not turn me out and have seen me through it and no one knows about it. I have suffered and paid for my wrong I did when I was a kid and would like to know if you think there is some good, understanding man in this wide world who would forgive me? It seems that men's deeds can all be forgotten and forgiven and they go on just the same and make some innocent girl believe they are all right, but a woman cannot. Oh, please, Mrs. Lee, tell me what to do and which way to turn."

"BROKEN HEARTED AND LONELY"

Why brood or think about what has occurred in the past? Try to use your misfortune as a foundation for a more sympathetic and broader understanding of life. It will then never stand in the way of your happiness when some day you will meet the right man. In the meantime, however, grasp at the happiness that is within your reach by cultivating friends and interests. After all, you have much to be thankful for, to have the love and protection of such splendid people as your foster parents.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 20. I have loved a boy for a year or more, but now I am not exactly sick of him yet sometimes I feel as if I love him again, and then I dislike him very much. What shall I do? Would you love him as you did at first or would you let it go as is going? Please give me the best advice and I will follow it."

PUZZLED.

You must be honest with yourself and the boy, Puzzled. Do not let vanity prompt you to lead the boy on, letting him believe that you love him when you do not. It is not fair. Think your problem over carefully and decide for yourself.

A boy comes forth with advice to "Tiny Tot," whose letter appeared a few days ago. She was wondering whether she should refuse petting and drop all good times or keep these and allow petting. He writes:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I hope you will print this letter so 'Tiny Tot' can see it.

"Listen, 'Tiny Tot,' don't allow yourself to go with the kissing and petting kind, for if you do it will be hard for you to ever find any true blue friends, for that kind will only get behind your back and laugh at you. I am glad to say that there are a good many boys that do not believe in that. I think I have a right to know, for I am a boy 26 years old and have been about a good deal. For myself, I have never been with a girl that would allow kissing and petting. Why? Because I did not want to be around them. There are plenty of boys just like myself."

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

A High Ride to Safety

Wish! wish!

A dark shape flitted from out of the nowhere and hovered over Mother Possum's head.

"Beware!" squeaked a shrill voice, and the dark shape melted into the shadows, only to reappear in a moment, and this time to hang in midair over Peter.

"Beware! Beware!" it cried, again and again, until the boy became more curious than frightened.

"Beware of what?" cried Peter. "Are you speaking to me, sir, or to the Possums, or to all of us? And of what are we to be afraid? How shall we know what to do if we don't know what the trouble is? You are fluttering your wings so fast that I can't be sure whether you are a bird or not. Are you?"

"No," squeaked the flying voice. "I am a Bat, and it is evident that you are a creature who walks in the daylight or you would have known it at once. But this is no time to talk about myself. I come as a friend of the Possum and I bear them a warning."

Bat paid no further attention to Peter but headed for the Paw-Paw tree, squeaking as he flew.

"The hunt is on, Mrs. Possum. Two-Leg hunters are aboard and Wool-Wool and his brothers are on your trail. Two-Legs carries a bang-stick. I saw it on his shoulder, glistening in the moonlight. There is not a moment to lose. Get out of the moonlight, Possums. Run for your lives if ever."

Baked Custard (Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Four cups scalded milk, four to six eggs, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, few grains of nutmeg. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar and salt and pour scalded milk on slowly. Put in buttered mold, sprinkle with nutmeg and bake slowly until firm. Run a silver knife curled up their tails over mother's side and jumped upon her back. Mother Possum arched her tail forward and all the little Possums curled up their tails over mother's side and jumped upon her back. Peter could so much as say coolly, off Mother Possum trotted, her children riding in safety high on their queer coach.

MENU HINT

Potato soup is a satisfactory dish with which to start a meal, either luncheon, dinner or supper. There are a number of ways of making potato soup. Sometimes the potatoes are cooked and strained, sometimes they are cut in small pieces and the pieces left whole. Milk, seasoned with butter, almost always forms the "stock" of potato soup.

Potato Soup Crackers
Date Salad
Whole Wheat Bread—Butter
Delicious Pudding Cream Sauce
Tea Milk

Dice Salad—Dice apples, dates, marshmallows and nuts, about equal parts, and mix with any good salad dressing, chill and serve on lettuce.

Delicious Pudding—One egg, two tablespoons sugar, two teaspoons butter, one and one-half cups flour sifted twice, one-half cup light colored molasses, one-half cup hot water with butter; add flour sifted with soda. Mix well. Pour in the first mixture. Grease the pan that fits into your steamer. The waxed paper over the steamer. Steam one hour. Serve with cream sauce as follows:

Cream Sauce—Two egg yolks, one cup powdered sugar, one-half pint thick cream, flavoring. Beat yolks of eggs until light yellow, then beat in the powdered sugar. Beat cream until stiff, combine mixtures and flavor.

Tartare is a French word meaning sharp. Therefore, a tartare sauce is a sharp sauce.

Suggestions

Brighten With Water Color One housewife declares she wouldn't be without a few cakes of good quality water color paint. She uses them to touch up broken wallpaper, etc., and tells in the following how she renovated a paper lamp shade. She says: "I had an elaborate yellow lamp shade with black butterflies on it, which I thought I must give up; it was so faded and dusty. But I put a cake of sepia in a little water and with a brush splashed all the shabby parts of the shade. When it was dry I went over it with a fine brush and blended with each other and with the yellow, in a soft effect like autumn leaves, so that it is prettier than ever."

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. — More cruisers—of the 10,000-ton class—real cruisers, not blue-prints—will be fought for tooth and nail, beginning about as soon as congress meets next December, and probably lasting all winter, unless the administration comes to somewhere near the big navy group's terms sooner than that.

Chairman Thomas S. Butler of the house of representatives committee on naval affairs, who is expected to launch the campaign in and out of Washington every few days now, from his home near Philadelphia, getting his committee's plans in shape.

Other members of the committee—notably Representative Britten of Illinois, one of congress' leading big navy men—will be here considerably in advance of the session's opening, to lend a hand.

Movement Has Strength That Butler and his chief lieutenant among the committee members, Britten, will have strong backing, may be judged from fact that lawmakers like Speaker Longworth and Representative Tilson, majority floor manager in the lower house of the national legislature, are prominently identified with the big navy movement.

A still cruiser fight was put up in congress last winter, as regular Republicans as Longworth, Tilson, Butler, Britten and others going so far as to vote against the policy of President Coolidge, who at that time was for a much restricted program, in the hope, which he still cherished then, that England would agree to a more radical naval armament limitation plan than the one adopted at the Washington conference of 1921-2.

Since then, however, the question was put to the test, at the Geneva meeting during the past summer, between American, British and Japanese representatives, resulting in the refusal of the British to consider any conditions which this country's delegates could see their way clear to accept, so that it is believed the president may be willing now to come to the big navy party's terms.

English Cruisers Superior The opening of congress will find American and English not far from an equality in the matter of battleships—the advantage is somewhat in England's favor—but the British, with 13 10,000-ton cruisers either in commission or nearing completion, and the United States with one cruiser of more than 7,500 tons.

The United States has, indeed, six cruisers of 10,000 tons "authorized" by act of congress and contracts for them have been let—contractors. That is, they are in the blueprint stage, and will never get farther than that until money is appropriated to build them. Enough actually has been appropriated to make a bare start on two more.

In other words, our eight 10,000-ton cruisers are blueprints or little better, and it is to complete them that next winter's fight will be waged.

This being accomplished, we shall have eight cruisers of 10,000 tons and 10, available now, of 7,500 tons each, or 18 all told. In addition to this, we have a few more or less formidable proportions, none of them less than 20 years old—virtually obsolete for serious warfare.

Great Britain, on the other hand, has, besides her 10,000-ton fleet, 13 vessels strong, 44 other cruisers of from 3,500 tons upward, many of them of not much less than 10,000 tons—four, for example, of 9,750.

British Naval Program The British naval program calls also for one new 10,000-ton cruiser and two of 8,000 tons each, every year.

In discussing questions of cruiser strength, navy men never pass over the possibilities of England's merchant fleet, which, properly armed, would serve as commerce destroyers as efficiently as war vessels could do. Shipping records show that the British could put in to commission 435 sail of such craft, of from 14 to 24 knot speed.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

LOVELY NAILS—THE FINISHING TOUCH OF BEAUTY

Beautiful, well-kept nails are almost like jewels in the effect they have on one's costume and appearance. A flash of softly tinted nails, caught as graceful hand gesture, holds a peculiar fascination all its own. Nails are so small that they possess all the fineness of a detail and yet they are a tremendously important detail. I believe that one reason we judge a woman so much by her nails is that we feel instinctively that she is meticulous in that detail, she is perfectly put together in all the other phases of good grooming.

The ideal nails are almost shaped, never flat, not too pointed, simply a perfect oval. However, if your nails are not naturally that shape, you can do much to make them apparently so. Also, you can create the illusion of perfectly shaped hands. If the hands are short and wide, you can give them more of an appearance of length by allowing the nails to grow quite long and bringing them to a pointed oval at the ends. If you keep your nails long, you must, of course, keep them immaculately clean.

If your hands are too long and narrow, have almost the talon appearance, you should round your nails at the ends, since a point would intensify the thinness.

It is advisable to always use your nails.

An orange stick under the nails rather than a steel file. The latter scrapes away the skin that lines the under side of the nail and leaves the nail rough so that dirt is much more easily acquired and harder to get out. Never cut your cuticle. Simple work it down with your finger or the back of an orange stick. Cutting the cuticle is too likely to cause hangnails.

Now we come to the polish. Ordinarily, the best-groomed woman wears her nails a pale rose. However, there is a type of exotic woman who can wear a geranium nail polish to match the shade of her lipstick. This is especially attractive in the evening, but is out of place in an office. In France, women recently adopted the style of coloring the nails to match the costumes. I have seen green nails that were a very charming finishing touch to a green costume. However, I do not believe that style has gained much vogue in this country.

Fundamentally, the friction polish is still considered the best. However, liquid polish is so much more easily applied and really does provide a protection for the nails, so I feel that its popularity will steadily increase rather than wane. The ideal arrangement is to give yourself a good friction polish and then a coating of liquid polish over it to keep the shine and protect your nails.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLONE GIBSON SOB-STUFF

I was very much exercised, but not exactly pained, to read in a recent morning paper that some young woman whose sister had been indicted for murder, had had a visit to the jail, apparently to take her sister the heartening news that two little kittens, petted by her hands, had just opened their eyes. She, the aforesaid sister, was mighty happy when she was told "that the kittens were plump and fat and that their eyes were open," said the girl who was visiting the jail. She also said: "That she told her sister that the fall flowers were out" and she mourned that now that they were so beautiful when the incarcerated woman was not there to see them."

Affecting, isn't it? Why, do you know, those poor little kittens for to go through life unnamed, unless Sis gets acquainted of the accusation of one of the most atrocious murders ever brought before the bar of the United States and comes back home to name them.

I must be a very hard woman, but honestly, my eyes were perfectly dry as I read that, but somehow I can't feel sorry for those poor little kittens.

As for the flowers! I remember a poet by the name of Gray once said: "Full many a flower is born to blush unseen, And waste its sweetness on the desert air." I took heart again as I thought that perhaps, after all, those flowers might have been just as happy and bloom just as luxuriously in the pure air of heaven and caressed by the kisses of the angels as they would be if they sensed that their fragrance would be mingled with the scent of crime. (Any one who visits a prison or jail knows that there is a distinct odor to crime.)

No, I really could not get up any sympathy for those cats and flowers.

On the contrary, if my eyes were wet it was when I thought of the blossoms in the city cemetery that are giving up their drying sweetness on a new-made grave, a grave which holds the form of a young man, whose blackened and discolored eyes will never open again.

By the way, there are usually six kittens in a litter. I wonder if this litter had the usual number? If so, I am anxious to know what became of the other four. Were they chloroformed or drowned, or were they otherwise disposed of?

Memo: When you weep with sympathy, be sure that you are not shedding tears for the wrong person.

A FERVENT HOPE

A young minister, noted for his jollity, was dining at a farmhouse one Sunday, when he received a plate heaped with roast chicken remarked facetiously. "Well, here's where a chicken enters the ministry." "Hope it does better there than it did in the lay work," rejoiced the bright boy of the family.

The Theater

Barbara Frietchie, Frederick, Md., a direct descendant and namesake of the famous Civil War heroine, will make her first stage appearance next week in "My Maryland," which is based upon the historical episode.

Miss Frietchie has an excellent soprano voice and seems destined to make a name for herself in the theater. She will appear with the southern company of the operetta for several months and will then be transferred to the cast at Jolson's Theater, in which Evelyn Herbert is featured. There is said to be every likelihood that she will eventually play the leading role on tour, which will be perhaps the first time on record of an actress who impersonates her own ancestor and whose name is the same as that of her forbear.

Frances Culey, 16-year-old English film star, has succeeded in winning an "electric sign rating" for her name, despite her youth. She is shingleless, blonde and beautiful.

The Messrs. Shubert have announced that they have changed the title of their newest operetta, "Bonita," to "The Love Call," and that the play will have its Metropolitan premiere Monday evening, October 24. The score is by Edward Locke and the lyrics are by Harry H. Smith.

The most important of the new arrivals among pictures on Broadway is Fred Thomson's big thriller "Jesse James," which goes in for an extended run at the Rialto at popular prices. Two comedy teams are running neck and neck on the same street: Chester Conklin and George Bancroft in "Tell It to Sweeney," and Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in "Fireman, Save My Child." The big specials in addition to "Wings" include Al Jolson's "The Jazz Singer," "King of Kings," "Sunrise," "The Garden of Allah" and "The Patent Leather Kid."

Willie Howard, singing comedian in George White's "Scandals" was injured seriously last Tuesday when the taxicab in which he was riding to the theater was struck by another motor car. His nose was broken and he was hurt severely about the head.

Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer and promoter of motion picture enterprises, was discharged this week from bankruptcy in Federal Court, New York. In 1926, Morosco filed a petition in bankruptcy listing liabilities of $1,032,404 and no assets save old clothing.
